GPU Nuclear Initiates Communications With Farmers

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — When the GPU Nuclear Corporation's Unit II reactor facility at Three Mile Island, in Middletown, went down in an accident in 1979 after three months of operation, area farmers were really in the dark about what to do.

"We were told that we should evacuate and the oldest person on the farm should stay to tend the animals," said Lloyd Byers, a Dauphin County dairyman and several other county farmers who were guests of GPU last week during a tour of the facility and a discussion with corporation representatives.

Byers and the others said that, while it was too long ago to remember who or what agency was putting out the information, they were told that since the oldest person on the farm wouldn't live as long anyway, they should stay behind to face the unknown.

And the unseen.

Like many people who resided in and around a 10-mile radius of the nuclear power facility, Byers said he remembers exactly what he was doing when he learned of the accident.

A core reactor suffered damage when back up systems failed during a mishap. Whether a significant amount of radiation was released onto the nearby com-

Facing his audience of Dauphin County farmers, GPU Nuclear Corp. spokesman Tom Kauffman explains the need, function and use of a Three-Mile-Island training center with a simulated nuclear reactor control room. According to Kauffman the equipment and sensitivity of the equipment is identical to that actually used to control the TMI Unit 1 reactor plant.

1,600 Attend National Holstein Convention

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Two Pennsylvania dairy bowl teams were named national champion dairy bowl teams during the National Holstein Convention held June 25 through July 1 at the Riverside Convention Center in Rochester, N.Y.

To knowledge, it is the first time both senior and junior dairy bowl teams from Pennsylvania simulataneously won national titles.

Members of the senior dairy bowl team were Liza Haas, Jennifer Hummel, Murel Raub and Meranda Dun, and coach Logan Bower, who defeated a team from California to take the title.

The junior dairy bowl team consisted of coach Ann Day, and members David and Matthew Day, Heath Ocker and John Leib Jr. They defeated a New York team in the finals.

In addition to the numerous activities during the convention, several other Pennsylvanians received honors.

Among them was John Cope, of Grantham, who was elected vice president of the association. John Selz, of Humbird, Wis., was named president.

Taking the title as Distinguished Young Breeder Award winners were Lloyd and Denise Pease, of Susquehanna (see story, June 26 issue Lancaster Farming).

About 1,600 people had registered to attend the 108th annual meeting, according to association records.

Of the official business conducted, of special note is the fact that the board approved cutting back on international development work by the association, but it will continue to fund judging and classification work overseas and is to maintain a working relationship with other nation herdbooks on registry and bloodtypes, according to an association newsletter.

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — This year's Animal Housing Expo, a show for Northeast livestock, dairy, and poultry producers, is scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

The show, now in its second season, centers on the fundamentals of animal behavior and care.

Knowing the flight zone of animals, being wary of how you load them onto and off the chute, and other factors are some of the elements presented at this year's show.

But there's more, including a wide array of animal care topics, demonstrations, and equipment and housing exhibits, including the following:

- Basic Ventilation Concepts, Dr. Robert Graves, Penn State.
- Legislative Update on H.B. 100, Rep. Sheila Miller (R-Host).
- Getting the Most Out of Your Milking Parlor, Mike Gamroth, Oregon State University.
- Handling Swine Safely, Dr. Ken Kephart, Penn State.
- Environmental Impact Studies, Richard Hoover, R. E. Wright Associates.

Panel topics and moderators include:

- Dairy Expansion and Remodeling Experiences, moderated by Dr. Robert Graves. Panel members include Doyle Waybright, Mason-Dixon Farm, Gettysburg; Robert Rohrer Sr./Jr., Washington Boro; Steve Hershey, Manheim; Gary and Barb Lentz, Lebanon; Dale Hoover, Lebanon; and Jim and Deb Hoffman, Lebanon.
- Trends in the Swine Industry, moderated by Dr. Ken Kephart. Panel members include Mark Hitz, Lebanon, contract to independent; Steve Hykes, Annville, swine composting; Jerry Hostetter, Annville, nutrient management planning; Dave Koch, Breta. Ill..

Line run breasts were adequate to instances fully adequate; however, very little additional product was offered. Breast weights were lighter than desired. Leg quarters cleared to a sluggish demand at unchanged prices; the undertone was barely steady to weak. Wings were irregularly distributed.

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds varied, but was about moderate overall. Seller offerings were adequate and in fairly good balance, instances short on 3 pound and smaller sizes. Processing schedules remained heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 48 to 64 cents. Trade sentiment was mostly steady. Legs and leg quarters were closely cleared. Breast items were in a range of balanced to available. Wings remained at least adequate.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JULY 12-18, 1993

BASTILLE DAY, JULY 15.

NEW FOREIGN MARKETS

When Commodore Matthew Perry arrived in Tokyo Bay the Japanese demanded that he move on. By July 14, 1853, possibly due to Perry's well-armed force anchored in Tokyo Bay, the Japanese were convinced to meet with him Perry presented the Emperor's representatives with a letter from former President Millard Fillmore requesting protection for shipwrecked American sailors, the opening of additional ports to foreign trade, and establishment of coaling stations for American steamships. Since the mid-seventeenth century, Japan had pursued a policy of isolation, with only one port, at Nagasaki, open to foreign ships Perry's efforts resulted in ports being opened to American commercial interests for the first time in history, in less than a year

History is clarified experience. - J R. Lowell

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, Mo.
Wednesday, July 7, 1993

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY WHEAT AND CORN PRICES DECLINED, WEDNESDAY, PRESSURED BY PROFIT TAKING AND SHORT COVERINGS ON THE BOARD; SOYBEAN PRICES CONTINUED SHARPLY HIGHER BOUYED BY WIDESPREAD FLOODING AND ONGOING RAINFALL IN MIDWEST AREAS. WHEAT 3 TO 8 CENTS LOWER EXCEPT MINNEAPOLIS FELL 31 CENTS. CORN UNCHANGED TO 2 CENTS LOWER. SORGHUM MIXED. SOYBEANS 9 TO 19 CENTS HIGHER. WHEAT PRICES LOWERED DESPITE CONTINUED RAIN DELAYED HARVEST IN KANSAS AND OKLAHOMA. HOWEVER, HARVEST PROGRESS MADE BETWEEN SHOWERS AND FIELDS UP INTO SOUTHERN IOWA READY, ONCE DRY ENOUGH. REPORTS HARD RED SPRING WHEAT PRODUCTION IS ESTIMATED HIGHER THAN EXPECTED, AS WELL AS ALL WHEAT PRODUCTION. VERY GOOD YIELDS FROM DRY AREAS THAT HAVE BEEN HARVESTED. GOOD EXPORT DEMAND PAST COUPLE DAYS LIMITED LOSSES. PROFIT TAKING ON THE BOARD PRESSURED CORN PRICES SLIGHTLY LOWER. TRADERS IDEAS ACREAGE CUT BACK DUE TO FLOODS, BUT RAINS MAKE CORN. ADDITIONAL PRESSURE STEMMED FROM LACK OF NEW EXPORT DEMAND. STILL TRYING TO DO SOMETHING WITH LAST YEARS BUMPER CROP. SHARP GAINS AGAIN IN BEAN PRICES, FORCED HIGHER BY CONTINUED REPORTS OF RAINS AND HIGH WATER SPREADING AND ENGULFING MORE ACRES. THERE'S VIRTUALLY NO CHANCE OF REPLANTING FLOODED FIELDS, TOO LATE.

OPINION

Public Relations Challenge

Two out of three newspaper editors from throughout the country believe that America's interest in food safety will increase during the next five years, according to a recent poll commissioned by CMF&Z Public Relations, a Young & Rubicam company.

The study found that nearly all (95 percent) of the survey respondents think food safety is currently an important issue with the American public. Nine out of ten (87 percent) believe the issue has become more significant in the past five years, and a strong majority (65 percent anticipate continued prominence.

The survey identified key newspaper editors' perceptions about the importance of food safety, outlined the most important elements of this issue and developed insights regarding the information provided by key resources to journalists covering food safety. Additional survey highlights include:

• What Are The Key Food Safety Issues?: The editors ranked bacteria in food as the issue of most importance to the American people, followed closely by pesticides and drug residues in food.

• Who Covers Food Safety Issues?: The "food safety beat" is generally covered by food editors (96 percent), according to the survey. It also is relatively common for lifestyle editors (78 percent) and health editors (77 percent) to cover food safety issues. Editors who cover agriculture (34 percent), business (31 percent) and science/technology (18 percent) ranked significantly lower on the list.

• Who Are The Best Information Sources?: More than half of the editors indicated that they receive information on food safety from the following sources: Wire services, government agencies, consumer groups, universities, agricultural commodity groups and food manufacturers. The journalists ranked university information as the most credible, followed by wire services and government agencies.

• What Type of Information Is Needed?: The editors indicated three types of information are most useful when writing stories on food safety: (1) information in layman's terms, (2) expert sources, and (3) balanced information that addresses both sides of the issue.

• How Do Food Manufacturers' Efforts Rate?: Four out of 10 editors (40 percent) feel that food manufacturers are doing a "good" or "excellent" job when working with food safety issues. Although, nearly half (49 percent) of the respondents gave an "average" ranking to those types of companies.

The survey identified the most pressing food safety issues. In addition to bacteria, pesticides and drug residues in food, the editors listed irradiation, genetic engineering and handling contamination as the most significant food safety topics. These responses were based on the editor's perceptions of consumer interests.

This means that companies and organizations involved in these areas can anticipate further coverage and continued consumer attention. They need to be ready to respond, and better yet, take a pro-active approach.

Like it or not, food safety issues will continue to receive media coverage. Complete and accurate information incorporating some or all of the following information is most desired:

- expert, unbiased sources with documentation
- balanced information, that addresses both sides of the issue
- case study support
- breakthrough technical data and statistics
- public opinion research findings
- graphs and graphics
- local news hooks/story angles
- "how to" information

This issue creates the classic public relations challenge. Proper action coupled with effective communications can create a win-win situation for the food industry and for the general public.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Apply For Liquid Fuel Tax Refund

You should have received your Farmer's Liquid Fuels Claim Form by now. This tax refund is available to anyone who uses liquid fuels in the actual production of agricultural products.

Filing is done on a fiscal year basis. Refunds are now available for the period July 1, 1992 to June 30, 1993. The claim forms must be received by the Pennsylvania Treasury Department by September 30, 1993.

In order for the claim to be properly processed, it must be accompanied by either actual paid receipts, copies of paid receipts, or dealer statement showing the number of gallons purchased and verification that state tax had been paid.

If you did not receive a form, have any questions, or need assistance in filing of claims, contact Lynne Vergot in the Treasury Department's Board of Finance and Revenue at (717) 787-6534.

File now before you forget and the deadline passes. Remember, you are only requesting a refund of your money already paid to Harrisburg.

To Protect Wellheads

Water quality is a major issue facing us.

One of the areas that will have the greatest impact on underground water quality has received little attention. That is the wellhead area.

The wellhead area is the land area around your well that is needed to recharge it with water you use. In this part of Pennsylvania, about 12 inches of water is available to recharge underground water. This is one acre foot of water or 324,000 gallons of water per acre of land.

To determine your wellhead protection area, calculate the amount of water used from your well in one year. For a 50-cow dairy herd this would be 638,750 gallons per year or water from two acres. For 80,000 laying hens, it would be 1,460,000 gallons per year or 4.5 acres.

For the dairy herd, this represents a radius from your well of 167 feet or for the poultry farm a radius of 250 feet.

What type of activities are taking place in this area? Manure storage, equipment washing, dead animal disposal, and fertilizer storage are a few examples of possible land uses.

Based on experiences of the Rural Clean Water Project, farmers had the biggest improvement in well water by changing land use in their wellhead area.

Now is the time to go to your well and look at the various activities taking place within 150 to 300 feet of your well and make the necessary changes.

To Test Standby Generators

The recent hot weather and thunderstorms reminds us power failures may happen at anytime. Are you ready for them?

Standby generators should be tested weekly and make sure there is enough fuel to run them for extended period of times. Simulate different kinds of power failures. To often we only check for one type of failure and ignore other causes.

Make sure your alarm system is working and not depending on the same power source that caused the failure for operation. The result would be a nonfunctioning alarm system.

Also, make sure all fans are running at maximum output. Clean inlets, louvers, and fan blades while making sure belts are tight and louvers are opened.

Do not depend on automatic controls. Make sure someone visually checks to make sure all mechanical systems are working, especially going into and out of tunnel ventilation.

Looking at the investment in buildings, equipment and animals, you need to have someone staying close by and monitoring confinement buildings at all times during hot weather and thunderstorm season.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

By Lawrence W. Althouse

CHRIST-SHAPED VOID
July 11, 1993

Background Scripture:
Colossians 2
Devotional Reading:
Hebrews 10:11-25.

I do not profess to understand much of the tragedy that occurred in Waco at the Branch Davidian compound in the early part of this year. The appeal of the charismatic leader and his cult obviously had something to do with offering people spiritual assurance. These were people who felt a sense of emptiness which he was able to fill--at least for a while.

What kind of emptiness? Many people want to be assured that they are giving themselves to a system that has the answers to all their questions and cults usually assure their adherents that they have those answers. What they offer their recruits is a belief--system that seems to hang together and make sense. Many people also are searching to fill an emotional emptiness. They feel they need something to make their lives whole, but they don't know what it is until the cult comes along and offers to fill that void.

What is a cult? My Random House Dictionary of the English Language (1967) gives seven definitions. Two main strains ruin through these definitions: (1) a system of rites and ceremonies and (2) a bond of personal devotion to a thing, a person or ideal. On the face of it, there is nothing wrong with either of those. Systems of rites and ceremonies keep worship from being chaotic and the church at its best is a bond of fellowship in common devotion to Christ.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR GOD

This becomes a problem only when the system or the bond of devotion usurp the place of the spiritual power they are meant to serve. Human beings have always been tempted to use religion to exert control over spiritual forces. This is the basic appeal of magic and witchcraft--to manipulate the powers, what I believe Paul means by "the elemental spirits of the universe" (Col. 2:8b).

So, it is easy for us to look at a group like the Waco Branch Davidians and see them as a cult. What is not so easy is to see the cultic practices of our own mainline religious groups. We all have our ritualistic systems, including those who make a system of not having any systems. We all encourage a bond of devotion to a common cause. But mainline religious groups can also make their systems and their bond into ends instead of means.

In other words, we all are tempted to present our answers and rituals as the— answers and rituals. That which is first intended to help us experience God ends up becoming a substitute for God. The rituals and the bond of fellowship become more important than the reality behind them. What we offer is a certainty that is really not ours to offer."

HUMAN TRADITIONS

So it was in Colossae and it was the reason Paul was writing that church. Someone in Colossae was undermining the church there. We do not know the specifics, but it is obvious from Paul's letter that there was excessive ritualism, asceticism, rules and regulations on foods and holy days, and the worship of angels. That is why Paul writes: "See to it that no one makes a prey of you by philosophy and empty deceit, according to human tradition, according to the elemental spirits on the universe, and not according to Christ" (2:8). "Therefore let no one pass judgment on you in questions of food and drink or with regard to a festival or a new moon or a sabbath" (2:16).

Somewhere I read, "In everyone's heart there is a Christ-shaped void." Only Christ--not our rituals, our systems, our human traditions or speculative philosophies--can fill that void in our hearts. As Paul says, "For in him the whole fullness of deity dwells bodily, and you have come to fullness of life in him..." (2:9). For that emptiness we all want to fill--only Christ: nothing more, nothing less.

Don't Forget The Dry Cows

ELLEN JORDAN
Dairy Specialist
Texas Extension Service

DALLAS, Texas — What happens to the dry cows on your farm?

Are they put in a back pasture and left to fend for themselves? Or do you treat their care as an investment in your future?

Many times, dry cows don't receive enough attention. Since they aren't contributing to current cash flow and profit, they may be given poorer quality feed or their rations may not be formulated specifically to meet their needs.

Body Condition Score

Proper management of the dry cow begins at the end of the cow's previous lactation. For years, you have been looking at cows and saying they are too thin or too heavy. In redent years, we have begun to quantify condition using a body condition score of 1 to 5.

A condition score change of one unit is approximately 120 pounds of bodyweight. During late lactation, cows should have a condition score of 3 to 3.5. During the dry period a cow's condition score should be 3.25 to 3.75.

Overconditioned dry cows are 2.5 times more likely to develop cystic ovarian disease, 7 times more prone to foot problems after calving, and 2.8 times more likely to develop a reproductive problem during the next lactation compared to herdmates in good condition.

In addition, cows which lose body condition during the dry period are at a greater risk for dystocia and for culling in the subsequent lactation.

Dry Cow Treat

Another important management tool is dry cow treatment: Dry cow treat all quarters of all cows after the final milking of the lactation, and use a product that is specifically designed for dry cows. DO NOT use a product designed for lactating cows.

The advantages of dry cow treating are many. Among them are:

- The cure rate is higher than during lactation.
- No discarded milk.
- Minimized risk of antibiotic contamination of the milk.
- More persistent antibiotic formulations can be used, improving the chance of success.
- Damaged tissue has time to be repaired before freshening.
- Decreased incidence of clinical mastitis at freshening.
- Prevention of new infections during the dry period.

Grouping

Separate dry cows into a minimum of two groups — a far off and a closeup group.

The far off group consists of cows from "dry-off" to two to three weeks before calving. The close-up group includes all cows within two to three weeks of calving.

The far off group may be further divided into a group that needs to gain weight and a second group that needs to maintian their weight. DO NOT put cows on a diet to lose weight.

Feeding

Feed cows in the far-off group rations that contribute to development of the rumen musculature. This includes some long-stemmed forages that are high in fiber. Providing plenty of fiber during the dry period can minimize postpartum digestive problems such as displaced abomasum (DA).

Reduced dry matter intake usually occurs during the last two to three weeks prepartum. Thus, increase the nutrient density of the ration to maintain the desired quantities of protein, energy, minerals and vitamins.

Avoid drastic changes in the postpartum ration by introducing feeds of low palatability (certain fats and animal proteins, for example) into the ration during the late dry period. Also feed at least most of the post-calving feeds during the late dry period.

This does not mean you should feed the lactating ration to the close-up cows without modification. Check with your nutritionist to see which feeds might be detrimental to dry cow health and avoid using them for the dry cow ration.

Dietary Cation-Anion

Recently we have been hearing about the positive effects of feeding rations with a negative dietary cation-anion difference (DCAD) to dry cows.

Cations are positively charged ions and anions are negatively charged ions.

Feeding negative DCAD rations

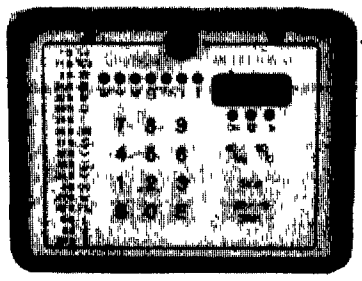
METATRON Will Make Your Milking System Complete!



Metatron Control

Westfalia's Metatron gives you the edge in effective, economical herd management. This DHIA and USDA approved cowside milk meter provides milk metering on an individual cow milking for in-parlor evaluation. Vital information of milk produced, maximum milk flow, average milk flow and milking time is also available at cowside. Aids you to better manage each individual cow.

The Metatron Milk Meter is transparent for visible operation and designed to take years of use. The unrestricted, full 1" milk outlet takes into account all air flow and milk flow requirements for high producing dairy cows of today and tomorrow. It's convenient, too, and can be on line mounted, or remotely mounted out of the operator's way.

Rural Living Is Healthier

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Many rural residents who rate themselves as less healthy and happy than their urban counterparts may not know how well off they really are, Penn State researchers say.

"We looked at recent data on health and well-being of American adults and found that rural residents age 19 and older consistently rate their physical health as poorer than non-rural residents," noted Dr. David J. Eggebeen, associate professor of human development in the College of Health and Human Development. "Furthermore, both young-adult and elderly rural residents rate themselves as less happy than non-rural residents."

However, the same data indicate that middle-aged and elderly rural residents are the most likely to be healthy as measured by the absence of any of eight physical, mental and social health impairments. They also average the lowest number of such impairments among the respondents — lower even than young adults in any residential classification.

Eggebeen says the roots of the poor health and happiness self-assessments from rural residents are unknown, as the ratings remain low even when differences in social class and family structure are taken into account.

Furthermore, no disadvantages to rural life are evident in the reports as far as activity limitations or higher rates of chronic illness or disability are concerned.

Eggebeen studied the matter with Dr. Daniel T. Lichter, professor of sociology in the College of the Liberal Arts. Their findings, released by Penn State's Population Research Institute, appeared in the spring 1993 issue of the Journal of Rural Health.

The researchers used data from the 1988 National Survey of Families and Households to iso late differences in health and well-being based on the survey respondents' age and area of residence.

Respondents were classified into four types of residences: urban (living in counties with a metropolitan area's central city), suburban (living in metropolitan counties with no central city), rural-urban fringe (living in non-metropolitan counties adjacent to a metropolitan county), and rural (living in counties that are both non-metropolitan and non-adjacent to a metropolitan county).

"The conventional wisdom is that a disproportionate share of the nation's chronically ill live in small towns and rural areas," Lichter said. "The lack of quick access to primary care units, social isolation and higher poverty presumably place rural people at a health disadvantage compared with their metropolitan counterparts.

"That may sound sensible on paper, but the numbers tell a different, more complex, story."

For instance, nearly 46 percent of the middle-aged rural residents had none of the health impairments targeted by the study, compared to 36 percent of those in fringe areas and 39 percent in central cities. Among the elderly, more than a third of a rural residents were in good health, compared to less than a fourth of those in central cities and 27 percent of those in suburban areas.

A somewhat better-deserved image of rural life is that it is quiet and less hectic, the researchers say. They found that rural adults, regardless of age, were much more likely to be socially connected than those living elsewhere, especially in terms of greater involvement with family members. Also, the middle-aged and elderly rural respondents tended to show the highest levels of organizational involvement.

"In short, the idea that all rural adults are in poorer health than urban-dwelling residents is not supported by the data we examined," Eggebeen said. "And as far as family ties and social health are concerned, rural adults appear to possess large advantages over urban residents."

Festival Features Swiss Origin Of Pa. Barn

SCHAEFFERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — Schaefferstown's annual Folk Festival and Antique and Classic Tractor Show July 16-18 at the Alexander Schaeffer Farm will center on the discovery of the Swiss origin of the Pennsylvania barn.

Professor Robert F. Ensminger, after 15 years of research, has recently published his book, entitled "The Pennsylvania Barn." Ensminger will be the main speaker and will also show slides of the European prototype of Pennsylvania barns, including the precise area in Switzerland where they are located.

The Forebay Bank Barn became the favorite of Pennsylvania farmers and spread west through the Farm Belt to become the American barn. It became so popular that a number of bottom barns were raised one story to convert them to bank barns.

The Pennsylvania Dutch log house's use and origin will be discussed by Robert Bucher. He will present a review of European literature relating to the origins of Pennsylvania houses and will explain why our European immigrants did not build their houses and barns together as a single unit.

Schaefferstown's third annual antique and classic Tractor Show will be held Friday, July 16 and Saturday, July 17 starting at 9 a.m. each day. On Friday, tractor contests feature teeter-totter, slow race, and crank up. At noon, a parade will be held, followed by more contests from 1 p.m.-5 p.m. and tractor pulls from 6 p.m.-9 p.m.

On Saturday, more tractor contests are scheduled, including teeter-totter, slow race, and crank up until 11:30 a.m. At noon, a parade is scheduled, and tractor pulls commence at 1 p.m. Awards will be presented beginning at 4 p.m.

Other activities include cooking demonstrations of Dutch foods, tasting, and recipes. Other attractions are house tours, baking in the 1771 bake oven, sheep to shawl, sawmill, crafts, sausage sandwiches, the Dutch kitchen, and raspberry shrub.

Dry Cows

has been reported to help control the incidence of subclinical hypocalcemia, clinical milk fever and droopy cow syndrome (defined as cows not cleaning in a timely manner and not eating and milking as well as they should in early lactation).

Dr. David Beede, from the University of Florida, spoke to the Texas Nutrition Council recently regarding DCAD. He reported that even well-managed herds, with cows in proper body condition and relatively low incidences of clinical milk fevers and ketosis produced an additional 500 to 1,000 pounds of milk in the follow lactation when anionic salts were fed.

Beede also reported that there was an improvement in fertility as measured by pregnancy rate at 200 days postpartum and days open.

Feeding DCAD rations during the dry period is not for all herds.

If you want to use a dry cow ration that has been balanced using the DCAD concept follow all the following guidelines.

•Work with a competent nutritionist.

•Analyze all feeds for Na, K, S, and Cl, in addition to the standard analysis.

•Select forages low in K (This may necessitate buying or raising forages specifically for the dry cows.).

•Monitor all feed intakes. This make the use of pasture systems for the close-up group difficult to use.

•Monitor palatability problems after the addition of the anionic salts as they are low in palatability.

•Use a TMR for best results.

•Continue balancing for other nutrients.

•Keep total non-protein nitrogen at less than .25 percent of total crude protein and keep degradable intake protein below 70 percent.

•Typically feed DCAD rations for three to four weeks prepartum.

•Be aware that DCAD is not 100 percent effective.

•Proceed with caution.

Failure to follow these guidelines, particularly in regards to farm specific ration formulation and intake monitoring, can do more harm than good. Proceed only under the guidance of a nutritionist.

Dry cow managment is critical to the long term success of you operation. Develop a plan to monitor body condition, dry cow treat all quarters of all cows, group cows, feed to develop rumen musculature, introduce lactation ration ingredients to close-up dry cows, and consider the use of DCAD in formulating the dry cow ration if you can follow the guidelines.

GPU Nuclear Initiates

munity during the incident remains contested.

GPU officials said there are about 2,300 lawsuits filed against GPU Nuclear relating to the incident and there are currently efforts underway to deal with them — the U.S. District Court Judge Sylvia Rambo has selected 12 test cases which are to be heard starting next July, and then the outcome of those cases is to be applied in settling the remainder of the cases, in an effort to expedite the judicial process.

However, the event continues to be remembered with some detail by a number of people.

"I was out in the field sowing oats with a helper. My wife heard (about the accident and advisory) on the radio and came out to tell me," Byers said.

"You know, no one will believe me, but (just before his wife told him of the incident) we got a coating over our lips (while in the fields) and nobody will believe that.

"I told the fella to go home. He lived eight miles away. But we didn't know what to do. We were thinking about shipping the cattle out of the area," he said.

"Our daughter went to work and said, 'If you leave, call me so I know where you are at.'"

At the time, GPU Nuclear Corp., headquartered in New Jersey, had only a part-time public relations person working at Three Mile Island. That person quickly became overwhelmed by inqurires from media around the world.

In addition, the media was relatively unused to dealing with nuclear energy, and a great deal of speculation and conjecture was disseminated.

GPU was in no position to quickly educate a public with a limited knowledge of fission.

And yet, even a visit by then-President Jimmy Carter to the crippled reactor didn't seem to put to rest public fear or conjecture.

Last week, for the very first time, the GPU Nuclear Corp. specifically sought out farmers to discuss the presence of the accident and the existing nuclear reactor.

During a previous meeting between GPU Corp. and county agricultural agency leaders, it became apparent that farmers would be interested in learning more about the facility, according to officials.

Tom Kauffman, spokesman for GPU, had contacted Dauphin County Extension agent Jim Welshans and county ASCS director Ruth Hagy to get together a small group of county farmers who would be interested in understanding more about the island in the Susquehanna River where nuclear energy is made.

"The whole reason for having this forum is because the local farming community is a large community that we haven't communicated with well in the past," Kauffman said, adding that he and no one else really knows why there had been no effort to reach out and specifically address the agricultural community.

Kauffman said that perhaps the reason has been that most people at GPU Nuclear are intensly concerned with making electricity using nuclear energy and, while knowledgeable about how to run a power plant, have not been as knowledgeable or aware of how to conduct good public relations as they should have been.

That is changing, he said. GPU Nuclear Corp. is attempting to be more responsive to the fears and questions of the surrounding community.

He said that currently, there are 13 people employed by GPU who are concerned with public relations in several different forms.

And, Kauffman said, the recent effort to "be good neighbors" is completely unrelated to the plethora of lawsuits the corporation faces. The Unit I reactor is scheduled to be online for years to come and a number of issues need to be addressed.

Nationally, Kauffman said the federal government's failure to site a national high-level radioactive waste facility is a big industry concern. According to Kauffman, the facility was supposed to be built by 1986, but a site is still pending.

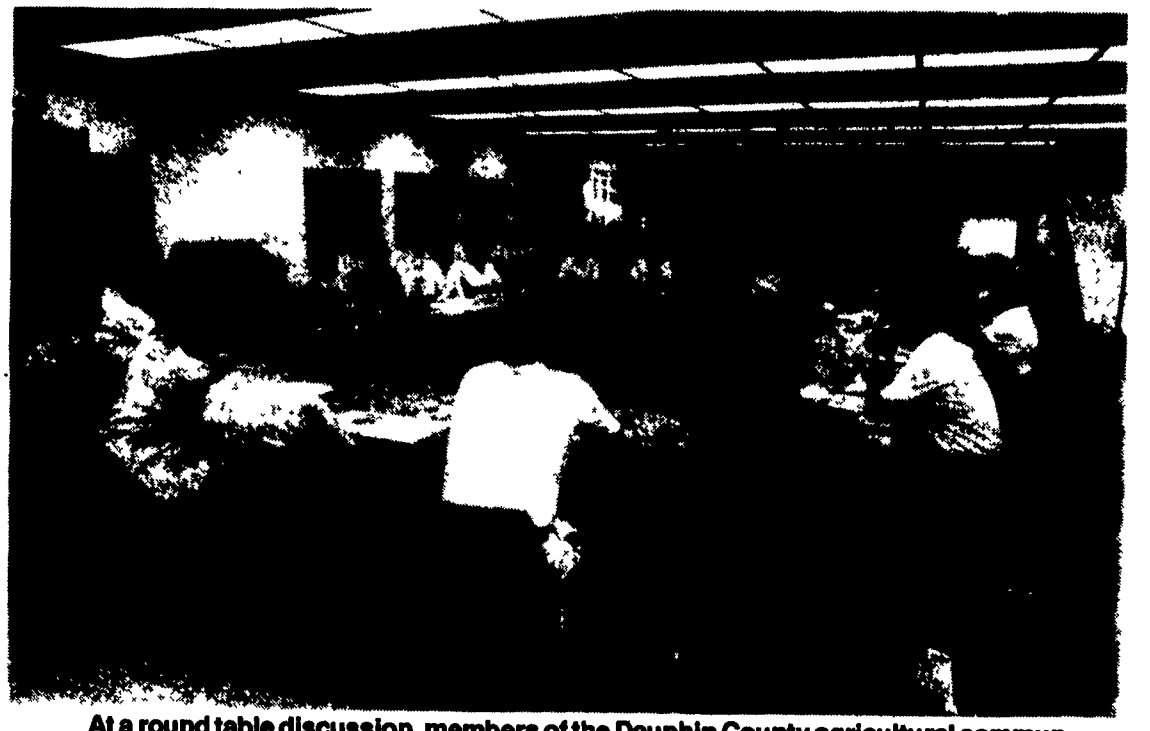
In the meantime, he said the more than 100 nuclear power plants operating in the United States are on a timetable and all should be decommissioned by 2050, requiring an adequate policy and facility to handle the waste.

Kauffman's own backround is heavy with actual hands-on operation of TMI. He's been employed for 15 years.

Prior to that, for two years at a southcentral Pennsylvania school, he was a teacher. However, his interests were elsewhere.

In his years with TMI, Kauffman has been an operator — eight years as a reactor operator and, for a portion of that time, a senior operator. That means he was, at times, soley responsible for the control of the process of atomic splitting, also called fission.

More than three years ago, he was given an opportunity to switch over into public relations within the company and he said he enjoys it, teaching again.



At a round table discussion, members of the Dauphin County agricultural community discuss with GPU Nuclear Corp. officials their feelings and attitudes about the company and the use of nuclear energy.

And while he has had school groups and civic groups and political groups and entities through the facility, he said he finally recognized that farming groups, as one group, had been ignored all along.

The day consisted of a logical introductory briefing of GPU Nuclear Corp. — a meeting and overview discussion in a large conference briefing room located south and across from the actual island, then entering a simulated plant operations room accompanied by a discussion of the hours of ongoing training the operators receive, followed by a bus tour of the island reactor facility and wildlife preserve, and a return to the conference room for a round-table discussion on GPU Nuclear, TMI, nuclear energy, and any fears or concerns that the farm community representatives may have held.

Kauffman also detailed the recent attempt by a Berks County man to break into the island facility, while on the bus tour, pointing to the specific place where events occurred and explaining the path of the driver's autombile.

According to Kauffman, the driver went past the main gate guard, past the open fence gate, into the compound, left onto what appeared to be a work vehicle access road, and then crashed into a large access door to a building adjacent to the reactor building.

According to Kauffman, there was never any danger to the reactor, but the corporation has intensified security for the facility as a result of the unexpected action.

During the round-table discussion, which followed a lunch, several of the guest farmers expressed concern about the attempt to break into the facility, especially in light of reports of the close proximity of an alleged firing range and possibly training grounds used by Moslem international terrorists.

The effectiveness of security against such types of terrorism were questioned.

However, officials said that the difficult-to-understand break-in may have actually been a blessing in getting scurity awareness increased before any problems could occur.

In addition, Hoffman said that the blast used to rock the World Trade Center would not have damaged the reactor, nor would a direct impact of a Boeing 747, nor an earthquake of less than 6.7 on the Richter scale (a logarithmic scale for measuring earthquake disturbances).

During the tour of the wildlife preserve, several species of heron were visible on a wetlands, and twin fawns were spotted along the roadway.

Kauffman also mentioned the facility's four environmental monitoring gardens and how, when he was working as an operator, people would bring bags of fresh vegatables from the garden into the operators to eat.

Related to that, during the round-table discussion, the farmer-group was introduced to Tim Bradley, GPU's environmental scientist who produces an annual Radiological Environmental Monitoring Report. However, Kauffman said that many of those farmers present may have known of Bradley, because he selects certain farms in the surrounding area to test for possible radiological changes.

Bradley has been checking for the possibility of radiation problems eminating from the nuclear facility for years and issues an annual report of his findings.

During the round-table discussion, among a number of issues, suggestions were made that GPU Nuclear Corp. use its some of its stable of public speakers to address people attending agricultural meetings and events, and to target more farmer-specific publications for news releases and information updates.

The result of the first meeting was a success for both parties, according to Byers, whose farm is located between Middletown and Hummelstown.

"I thought the meeting was very informative. I thought it was good. I can see that they want to work with the community and I can also see they didn't know how to do it," Byers said.

The dairyman said that when the accident occurred, "I said, 'Man made that and I don't know if he knows how to handle it,' and I don't know if he did at that time either."

But he said his opinion has changed.

"Current has to be made somehow and this is a good ... I believe they can handle it now. Today has helped me to feel that way."

NDB Study Shows Potential For Whey, Lactose Exports

WATSONTOWN (Sun Area) — This is your SUN area Dairy Princess, Michelle Dugan, to tell you some ways to budget fat in your diet.

A diet high in fat is linked to the development of several chronic diseases, including heart disease and cancer. Health professionals recommend that adults consume no more than 30% of daily calories from dietary fat, and no more than 10% from saturated fat. Unfortunately, translating this recommendation into daily food choices is easier said than done.

How does fat budgeting work? It involves four concepts:

1. Calculate your daily fat budget. The fat budget is determined by how many calories you eat. Multiply your calorie intake by 30%, or 0.30. Then divide the total by 9. The result is the total number of grams of fat you can eat in a day to meet current dietary recommendations for fat. For example, if you eat 2000 calories a day, you can allot 600 calories for your fat budget. Divide this number by 9; the result is a daily fat budget of approximately 67 grams.

2. Determine the fat content of foods you eat. Some people mistakingly eliminate entire food groups, with the belief that those foods are all too high in fat. However, there are low fat options in each food groups. Read food labels of packaged foods.

3. Understand serving sizes. Serving sizes play an important role in controlling fat intake. For food that contains fat, the larger the serving size, the higher the fat. Try measuring portions for a short time to familiarize yourself with standard serving sizes.

4. Make food trade-offs. For example, you can substitute turkey on whole wheat bread for ham on a croissant, and have a scoop of ice cream for dessert.

National Holstein Convention

The move was caused by a lack of income. According to the 1992 Holstein Association Annual Report, while animal registrations were increased from 1991, and ownership transfers were increased, during the same time total Holsteins enrolled was down to 533,634, while herds classified increased, but the association ran in deficit for the third straight year.

According to the report, the association operated at more than a $2 million loss and had to pull funds out of reserve in order to cover expenses.

In a convention newsletter, Association CEO Steve Kerr said that dropping some of the international effort came as a recommendation from the International Committee. According to the newsletter, Kerr "says Holstein breeders and members were not realizing a large enough return on their expenditures to justify continuation. The export and sales work of HFS, Inc. will not be affected by these changes."

In other news, the convention sale netted a total of $758,850, according to the association. There were 95 lots sold, according to reports.

Also, six finalists were named for the Distinguished Junior Member contest. Among them were Becky Burr, of Connecticut, daughter of Phillip and Martha Burr; Melanie Eachus, of Woodstown, N.J., daughter of Milton and Margery Eachus; Corey Geiger, of Reedsville, Wis., son of Randall and Rosalie Geiger; Miriam Kelly, of Tyrone, daughter of Tom and Margaret Kelly; Duane Nolt, of Richland, son of Janice Nolt and the late Roy Nolt; and Julie Watts, of Killbuck, Ohio, daughter of Steve and Carol Watts.

In other news, the winner of the Rumler Scholarship for 1993 was Elizabeth Henry, 32, of Dane, Wis. The scholarship is named after Robert Rumler, of Chambersburg, Pa.

The award is made annually to a graduate student in business with a dairy backround.

As a U.S. correspondent and advertising sales manager for Typex Magazine, in Rennes, France, Henry promotes the U.S. dairy industry worldwide.

Also highlighted during the convention was the outgoing president's address.

Carl Butler, of Pine Plains, N.Y., said that an open mind and cooperation were needed in order to ensure a future for the Holstein association and also other breed associations.

"The Holstein Association cannot operate in the future as it did in the past. We must not let tunnel vision to the past cloud the vision of the future.

"Dairymen will not maintain membership, and participate in programs and services, out of of habit, or because their fathers did," he said.

"There must be a specific reason and, in most cases, that reason will be dollar based."

In addressing the 250 delegates and additional guests to the convention, Butler reviewed some of the possibilities for change within the association, most of which had been reviewed locally previously during a winter forum meeting at Grantville.

However, Butler cautioned that much work remains and that a positive, cooperative attitude is a must.

"Much remains to be done within your association, as well as in its relationships with allied industry," Butler said.

"Many dairy related organizations, including the Holstein Association, have been giving lip service to the concept of cooperation to better serve dairymen for several years. These discussions have intensified somewhat in the past year. But, for the most part, have not resulted in any significant progress," he said.

And while saying that he did not accomplish everything that he had wanted to help get done, he said the opportunities for a bright future do exist and can be achieved.

"If the challenges of the future are addressed with open minds, and a willingness to compromise — with the welfare of the membership and the association as the main criteria for basing decisions — the future of the Holstein Association will be as long and successful as its past."

From the left, John Cope is named vice president of the National Holstein Association, while John Selz is named president.

May Milk Price Set At $12.72

ALBANY, N.Y. — Dairy farmers who supplied regulated milk dealers (handlers) under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during May 1993 will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $12.72 per hundredweight (27.3 cents per quart). The price for the corresponding month last year was $12.36 per hundredweight.

Market Administrator Ronald C. Pearce also stated that the price was $12.19 in April 1993.

The uniform price is a market-wide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive plan has been suspended for 1993. The plan would have removed 40 cents per hundredweight from the dairy farmers' uniform price for May. The monies deducted during the spring months, plus accrued interest, would have been returned in the August through November uniform price calculations.

A total of 12,211 dairy farmers supplied handlers regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders with 1,057,364,631 pounds of milk during May 1993. This was an increase of 4.4 percent (about 44 million pounds) from last year.

The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $135,310,029.91. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not premiums, deductions authorized by the farmer, or assessments.

Regulated handlers used 379,086,867 pounds of milk for Class I, 35.9 percent of the total.

Senate Version Of Farm Budget Less Harmful

DENVER, Colo. — The U.S. Senate's version of the budget, which passed today by a one-vote margin, is better for family farmers and ranchers than the House's budget bill, according to the National Farmers Union (NFU).

The Senate bill proposes to trim $3.2 billion from the budget through a series of smaller reductions spread out over almost every commodity. The Senate budget proposal also contains provisions that will save federal expenditures, without as severely affecting producer incomes.

The House bill achieved its required farm program cuts over the next five years, largely by increasing flex acreage from 15 percent to 20 percent. NFU had adamantly opposed the House decision, due to the direct, negative effect it would have on overall net farm income.

"Neither proposal is cause for celebration," said Leland Swenson, NFU president. "Either bill will reduce support of U.S. agricultural producers, but the Senate version is more evenly spread out and in some cases, includes new policies that will help producers in the long run.

"The Senate's elimination of the BTU tax, which would devastate farm incomes, also makes the Senate budget bill preferable for producers," said Swenson. The Senate opted for a 4.3 cent-per-gallon tax on gasoline and diesel, with an off-road exemption for agriculture.

The new policies referred to by Swenson include a moratorium on bovine growth hormone, which will save $15 million from the budget, because of the projected additional federal support that would be required from increased milk production. NFU is also pleased with the Senate's proposal to require that all imported wheat and barley be accompanied by an end-use certificate, so that imported grains cannot be used in U.S. export and international food aid programs.

The Senate bill would also limit the Market Promotion Program (MPP), a program that provides U.S. agriculture product exporters with financial assistance in developing foreign markets, to $110 million annually. Thirty-three million dollars of this amount would be targeted to smaller businesses and cooperatives that are new to the export market and to foreign market development activities designed to help smaller U.S. agriculture producers. The House bill had funded the program at $148 million with no provisions for targeting newcomers or small companies.

Crop Certification Deadline Nears

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — All Lebanon County farmers are asked to certify their 1993 crop plantings, land uses, acreage conservation reserve and other program acreage with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

In Lebanon County, the final certification date for crops such as corn, grain sorghum, soybeans and hay is July 15.

"Certification is the procedure by which farmers report their program acreage to establish their eligibility to receive the benefits of price support, deficiency payments and other farm program benefits," Jenifer Minnich, ASCS official said. Acreage reports are required for all participating farms.

She said that growers not participating in the 1993 programs should report their acreage to establish planting history, ensure future benefits and protect crop acreage bases.

After certification, ASCS will select farms at random to verify that acreage reports are accurate. Aerial photographs are available for farmers to help identify their fields.

Spring seeded crops may be certified at any time between 8 a.m., and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. "We encourage farmers to certify as soon as possible after planting and not wait until the deadline date to report their acres," Minnich said.

Eligibility for participation in all programs administered by ASCS is on a nondiscriminatory basis as established under law without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex, marital status or disability.

Depite Heat Wave, Lancaster Holds Hog Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Sweltering heat and unruly hogs didn't defray the 30 exhibitors and about 135 hogs from competing at the 31st annual Lancaster FFA Hog Show and Sale at the Manheim Fairgrounds Wednesday.

State Ayrshire Field Day July 17

BELLEVILLE (Centre Co.) — The annual field day of the Pennsylvania Ayrshire Breeders Association is to be held Saturday, July 17, at John Rodgers Plum Bottom family farm in Belleville.

Registration for the field day is from 9 a.m. to noon at the farm.

There are to be many prizes given throughout the day, including a summer calf from Plum Bottom Farm that is to go to the winner of the youth (ages 8 through 14 years) judging contest.

In order to win the calf, the youth must be present and have judged the classes. In the event of a tie, the score will be broken by a contest to see who can most closely estimate the accumulated production of six cows.

The second place youth judging prize is to be announced during the field day.

There is also to be a prize for the first place winner of the sire and heifer matching contest and a prize to the first place winner of the production estimating contest.

The classes to be judged include aged cows in milk, 2-year-olds in milk, and a senior calf class.

In addition to the youth prizes, contest prizes will be awarded to the first and second place winners of the adult women (21 years old and older), first and second place adult men (same age cutoff), first and second place ladies (ages 15 to 20+), and first and second place gents (15 to 20+).

In other association news, some changes are anticipated for the Ayrshire Breeders at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show.

The first major change is that the Elite Sale is to be held 7 p.m., Sept. 21, with a preceding social event at 5 p.m.

In addition, according to Ben Hillyard, "We have been working with Tarus on having a sire-daughter display. We will be displaying daughters of four outstanding Ayrshire bulls."

Hillyard said the bulls are Ardrossan Ev Kates Trident, Plum-Bottom Nampa B.B.-ET, Aycamore-Meade Benf Co/Tor Peter, and Maple Dell's Soldier-ET.

Also, it is not too late for anyone interested in consigning an animal to the Elite Sale.

They Scream For Ice Cream At Martin's Biggest Sundae

ANDY FASNACHT
Special to Lancaster Farming

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — What would be the perfect finishing touch to a humungous Fred Flintstone Brontosaurus burger?

How about a Martin's Country Market giant 30-gallon ice cream sundae, complete with syrup and cherries.

Well Fred Flintstone wasn't around last Friday afternoon when Martin's, located in Ephrata, unveiled this "dino-sized" delectable in the store, but more than 500 shoppers stopped by for a share of the treat.

The huge sundae was the brainchild of Hershey Foods and the Lancaster County Dairy Association's "I scream, you scream," ice cream promotion.

It all started when Hershey called Martin's assistant grocery manager Vickie Firestone and asked if they wanted to build the sundae. Firestone, who is very promotion-conscious jumped at the opportunity.

"I like doing stuff like that," Firestone said. "I like displays and doing things with the public."

So with Hershey providing syrup, cherries and the mini swimming pool to build the sweet mountain in, Breyers came through with the 60 half-gallons of vanilla ice cream, while Graybill's Dairy supplied the whipped cream.

A mass of Friday shoppers waited patiently licking their lips in anticipation of this cool treat on a hot June day. Firestone said they would hand out free dishes of ice cream until it was gone and 500 dishes later, it was.

"If we did this before, this is the first time in a long time," Firestone said, seemingly quite pleased with the response.

A dish of scrumptious ice cream probably wasn't on the grocery list of shoppers Friday but that didn't stop most from finding a little room in their "bread basket" anyway.

ADC Names Bower Outstanding Young Cooperator

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) — Logan Bower of Blain, Pa., received a pleasant birthday surprise on June 18 when he was named Atlantic Dairy Cooperative's Outstanding Young Cooperator.

Bower, 33, competed against eight contestants during the 23rd annual Pennmarva Young Cooperator Contest to win the title. The contest was held June 17-18 at the Turf Valley Hotel and Country Club in Ellicott City, Md.

Bower grew up on his family's dairy farm in Perry County. On Feb. 1 of this year, he began leasing the farm from his parents. He milks 105 Holsteins and farms 400 acres. He raises an additional 105 head of young stock and grows corn, alfalfa, oats and barley.

Average annual production at Pleasant View Farms is 20,929 pounds of milk and 762 pounds of fat.

Bower graduated from Penn State University in 1982 with a bachelor's degree in dairy science. He is president of both his Atlantic local and the Perry County Farmer's Association. He is also an advisor for the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association and a member of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association. He represented Atlantic's District 18 in the Young Cooperator contest.

In addition to the Outstanding Young Cooperator, four runners-up were named. They are Evan J. and Lori A. Burkholder of Fayetteville, District 15, second place; James E. and Debra Krantz of Quarryville, District 12, third place; Gary L. and Claudia L. Bechtel of Curryville, District 20, fourth place; and Gary W. and Gail L. Thoman of Dallastown, District 16, fifth place.

As the top five winners, these young farmers will be named to Atlantic's Young Cooperator Consultant Committee for a three-year term. They are to join the 1991 and 1992 winners in developing and planning Young Cooperator activities for the coming year.

In addition, Bower and the Burkholders will attend the National Milk Producers Federation annual meeting Nov. 28-Dec. 3 in New Orleans, La. The Krantzes, Bechtels and Thomans are to attend the National Institute on Cooperative Education July 26-29 in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Judges for the contest were Joyce Bupp, a York County dairy farmer and director of Dairymen Inc.; Garry Hennip, Northeast Division Sales and Service director for Sire Power; and Cal Wettstein, a retired extension agent from Rutgers University.

Contestants for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative's Young Cooperator program are selected by the cooperative's membership districts. The contest itself is a culmination of a yearlong program providing cooperative education and leadership training to the participants.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative represents more than 3,500 dairy farm families in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Northeast DHIA Expands Dairy Management Group

ITHACA, NY — Recently, Northeast DHIA has taken on sales and support of the Afikim cow management system. In order to meet the needs of current and future customers, a new position has been developed. The DHIA staff is pleased to welcome Marcel Poirier to the Ithaca center as Afikim Technical Engineer. He is rounding out the DHIA dairy management group that, among other tasks, takes responsibility for Dairy Comp 305 and Afikim sales and support. The dairy management team will be trained in all areas of DHIA records and dairy management technologies systems. Marcel will assume primary responsibility for Afikim installations and service.

Born and raised on a dairy farm in Malone, NY, Marcel has been a Northeast DHIA Field Supervisor for over 10 years. In addition to his background in dairy management records, Marcel is an experienced electrician. His unique combination of dairy management expertise, technical knowledge and genuine interest in the success of dairy producers will be a great asset to customers in the Northeast.

The Afikim cow management system is the most advanced system for electronic herd management information. It measures production, activity and conductivity for each cow in the herd. Once a baseline is established, deviations are flagged for the operator. The system reliably alerts herd managers to cows likely in heat, have mastitis, or may otherwise be sick. The system integrates especially well with Dairy Comp 305 and, when used in combination, can provide extraordinary information to better manage the dairy herd.

cation of the NAFTA agreement. This agreement offers economic opportunities for Pennsylvania farmers and the U.S. economy as a whole. The fastest growing sector of the American economy is our export sector. Mexico is the fastest growing market for U.S. exports in the world. U.S. merchant exports to Mexico have increased 22 percent per year for each of the last five years. U.S. agricultural exports rose 173 percent, to over three billion dollars, from 1986 to 1991. The good news for Pennsylvania farmers is that NAFTA, over the next ten years, will cause U.S. exports to increase at a more rapid rate.

We believe there is a lot of misinformation about NAFTA and we want to set the record straight. NAFTA will create U.S. jobs, not lose them; it will expand U.S. exports; it will offer opportunities to improve Mexico's environmental and labor conditions as its economy grows and develops; and it will help to widen our trade surplus in farm commodities. The Institute for National Economics has estimated that over several years NAFTA will create a net increase of over 130,000 U.S. jobs. Recent estimates indicate that the gain to the U.S. gross domestic product by the year 2002 will 35 billion dollars. Part of that increase will be in increased sales of beef, dairy products and coarse grains which will directly or indirectly benefit Pennsylvania farmers.

Your editorial article refers to the myth that the Pennsylvania and the U.S. will suffer massive job losses as companies fly south to take advantage of cheap labor in Mexico. Two things are usually not discussed in this argument. First, labor costs are only part of the equation when companies decide where to locate. Many other variables enter the equation, including productivity, availability of raw materials and energy, transportation costs and marketing infrastructure. Otherwise, all those jobs would already be gone. Nothing is stopping them from leaving now.

Mexico's situation is similar to that of other developing countries - short of infrastructure, skilled workers, experienced managers and entrepreneurs but long on cheap labor in a world where cheap labor is becoming less important. In 1991, for instance, less than one third of the major investments abroad by U.S. companies went to countries with low labor rates.

Another element is that the cheap labor argument assumes that a job created in Mexico takes one away from the U.S. In fact, the result of a successful NAFTA will be to create income and employment in both countries. U.S. trade with Mexico has changed from a $5.6 billion deficit in 1987 to a $5 billion surplus in 1992. The result has been more U.S. jobs. Associated Press, citing a U.S. Commerce Department study, stated that exports from Pennsylvania to Mexico quadrupled between 1987 and 1992, placing the state among the top 10 in the nation in sales south of the border. This strong growth comes against the backdrop of closer economic ties between two nations as they move toward the establishment of NAFTA.

Your paper's editorial also indicated that many U.S. companies are most likely to move to Mexico because environmental laws are lax. Mexico's General Law of Ecological Equilibrium and Environmental Protection enacted in 1988 is roughly the same as U.S. laws and regulations. In 1992, the Mexican Congress created the Secretariat of Social Development, the government ministry charged with environmental policy formulation and enforcement - essentially the Mexican EPA. The environmental hurdles that companies wanting to locate in Mexico will have to jump will likely be no lower than those in the United States.

Since Mexican President Salinas took office, Mexico's environmental budget has increased 700 percent. The number of environmental inspectors has increased to more than 300. There have been suspensions of operating licenses and closures of 1,926 facilities for non-compliance with environmental regulations. More than 100 facilities have been closed permanently in an attempt to curb pollution in Mexico City. These are not the actions of a country unconcerned with enforcements of environmental rules and regulations.

It is unfortunate that you rely on the Manufacturing Policy Project Study when postulating that NAFTA will cost the U.S. 5.9 million manufacturing production jobs. This study has been widely criticized as using questionable methodology as being totally misleading. Its starting assumption is that industries whose labor content is 20 percent or more of the total value of shipments are vulnerable. As the 20 percent criterion is only slightly more than payroll as a percent of shipments of all U.S. manufacturing industries, the inevitable result was to find that approximately half of all jobs in U.S. manufacturing industries are implicated. Using the same procedure, but choosing industries with a 30 percent or more labor content criterion would have led to an estimate of 940,600, not 5.9 million, jobs at risk.

Regardless of the figure used, the analysis is incomplete since it ignores other factors, such as technological superiority, that contribute to U.S. competitiveness. Furthermore, the report characterizes these jobs as being "at risk" yet press reports and statements made in your paper's editorial imply that these jobs will actually be lost.

Mexico currently has higher trade barriers than the U.S. Mexico is currently at a 10 percent average, while the U.S. currently averages four percent. Mexico has significantly more non-tariff barriers than the U.S. Over ten years all of those restrictions will gradually be eliminated except for the most sensitive commodities, such as corn on the part of Mexico and citrus on the part of the U.S., which will be given fifteen years.

In summary, we believe strongly in our country and in doing what is right to promote jobs, prosperity and every American citizen's standard of living. We firmly believe NAFTA will promote growth and employment in our country. We also believe that NAFTA is important in maintaining a leadership role in the world. It is only by expanding our markets abroad, coupled with sound domestic economic policies, that we will stimulate our economy, provide jobs and prosperity for our fellow Americans and continue our role as a dominant and competitive force in the world.

Animal handling

Many of the problems associated with cattle — especially bruising — can be handled by knowing several of the fundamentals of caring for cattle, of which Dr. Temple Grandin knows a great deal about.

Grandin is assistant professor, department of animal sciences, at Colorado State University in Fort Collins, Colo. She is internationally known for her studies and recommendations to many cattle producers across the country.

Grandin will speak at the Expo about the "nuts and bolts" of animal handling, including how much personal space to give cattle, knowing their flight zone, and knowing how quickly and inexpensively producers can help solve some of the problems that plague the cattle industry.

"One of the first things producers can do is get rid of slippery floors," Grandin told Lancaster Farming during a telephone interview. Also, producers should put solid sides on loading chutes, keep people away from the sides of the chutes, and get workers at stockyards to understand the fundamentals of animal behavior.

A large part of what she'll address, she said, is bull safety. Many of the problems dairy producers face is how to handle bulls, according to Grandin. For many beef producers, bulls are weaned with their mothers. But dairy bulls many times aren't, and could pose real problems in handling in the yard.

In the past, her presentations have helped many producers across the nation benefit, and Grandin said she has heard comments from producers that showed how they can get results.

Bert Waybright, Mason-Dixon Farm, Gettysburg, will discuss aspects of his 1,200-cow dairy at this year's Animal Housing Expo.

Parlor management

Dairy producers can save up to 10 minutes off the milking time if they just take a few extra steps in preparing the cow, according to Dr. Michael J. Gamroth, associate professor of animal sciences and extension dairy specialist at Oregon State University. Gamroth will share his experiences in general milking parlor design and management at the Expo.

Milking parlor design performance and management work hand-in-hand, according to Gamroth. He said that, overall, a clean versus dirty parlor will contribute roughly 15 percent more milk to the tank. He will discuss optimal management of the herring bone and parallel type of parlors.

DAIRY HOUSING

Are you considering a building project for your dairy farm? If so, you need to ask a lot of questions, seek all the advice you can find, do an extensive plan, and make the decisions that are right for your operation. Whether it is a remodeling project or a major expansion, there are big bucks involved, and once construction is completed, you will have to live with your decisions for a long time. There has probably never been a perfect building project where the owner could say that he would not change anything that he did. However, the goal is to have those changes be minor ones and not have a large effect on the operation.

After saying all this, I don't want you to be scared to make building changes. It has often been said that a business never stands still; it either goes forward or falls backwards. A successful manager is always looking for ways to improve the operation, including animal nutrition, crop production and the use of the facilities. However, it is a lot easier and faster to reformulate a feeding ration to correct a problem than it is to jackhammer concrete out a barn to correct a mistake.

There is help out there. One excellent opportunity to get building ideas is the upcoming Animal Housing Expo at the Lebanon Fairgrounds on July 13 and 14, 1993. There will be industry booths, demonstrations, and speakers that will address building concepts and planning procedures. For dairy farmers considering any building project, the Expo should be a priority event to attend.

The Expo is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day and it is located at the Fairgrounds on Rt. 72, south of Lebanon. Your county agricultural extension agent is another source of value information and ideas.

What choices do you have? Dan McFarland, multi county ag engineering extension agent, says, "In dairy housing, if a farmer provides good ventilation, a comfortable resting area, adequate feed space and an adequate water supply, their choices of a building are endless." It then becomes a choice as to what type of structure the farmer prefers. Take the time to visit farms that have built structures in the past few years to solve needs similar to yours and ask a lot of questions. Why did they decide on a particular type of building, what are the advantages to the system and what would they change, after having worked in the facility for a period of time?

A partial checklist of items that should be addressed before a building project starts are:

- Decide what your goals and needs are now and in the future.
- Decide on the type of building or feed storage that will answer your goals and needs — take tours.
- Determine the location of the new facilities in relation to the land and existing buildings. Farmers tend to want to put new buildings too close to old barns which causes ventilation, fire, and movement of cattle and machinery problems. Location may affect the type of building that you select. Don't be afraid to take a couple acres of prime corn ground for your new barn to avoid creating a problem you will have to live with for years.
- Talk to several builders — in Southeastern Pennsylvania, there are a number of excellent agricultural construction companies.
- Develop a sound financial plan to determine what size facility fits your operation, what is the payback time on the new investment, and how will your profit/loss statement, cash flow and balance sheet look after the new facilities are operating. Another question is, do you need to buy cattle to get your new facility up to full capacity to make your financial plan work? The FINPACK computer program provided by the cooperative extension is an excellent tool to formulate this total financial plan.
- Allocate additional funds above the projected cost — a building project almost always has additional costs above the original estimate because changes and corrections are made during construction.
- If you are planning to build several facilities, such as cow barn, heifer barn, silos and/or

Pennsylvania Ag Exports Increase

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agricultural exports from Pennsylvania reached a new record of more than $400 million in 1992, an increase of 15 percent over the previous year according to Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff.

"Exports of agricultural products from the Keystone State have more than doubled since 1987," Wolff said, "and that provides statistical proof that our market development efforts are paying off for Pennsylvania producers and processors.

"The Department of Agriculture's participation in international food shows has helped a growing list of Pennsylvania companies generate new interest in their products."

According to figures released by the Pennsylvania State Data Center, Pennsylvania Agricultural exports totalled $400,571,495 in 1992. The export figure includes all crops, livestock, food and tobacco. It does not include forestry and wood products, which also set a new record of $367,090,934, an increase of more than 23 percent over 1991.

In the past year the Department of Agriculture's Division of Domestic and International Trade has participated in trade shows with more than 100 Pennsylvania companies, attending trade shows in Korea, Hong Kong, France, Germany, Saudi Arabia and the USA. In addition, the Department sponsored special trade missions to Thailand and to the United Arab Emirates.

Agriculture Secretary Wolff and staff members from the Department's Bureau of Market Development represented 17 Pennsylvania food companies in a special PENNSYLVANIA USA Pavilion during the giant U.S. Food Export Showcase May 9-12 in Chicago. That show was held in conjunction with the 1993 Supermarket Industry Convention sponsored by the Food Marketing Institute.

"Those companies have discovered that our initial contacts during the Chicago show have translated into requests for product sample shipments to foreign lands," Wolff said.

Samples of confections, tomato sauce, powdered beverages, beer and soup have been sent to Taipei, Taiwan, Korea and Saudi Arabia as a result of participation in the food show in Chicago in May. A total of 34,000 potential buyers attended the show. International attendance was up 35 percent over last year.

"Our diverse food processing industry has established an international reputation for quality, and that reputation has carved out a worldwide market niche."

A recent survey of companies that participate in trade shows with the Department of Agriculture reveals that 63 percent of those companies have generated overseas sales because of the Department's export enhancement efforts.

For more information on exporting Pennsylvania agricultural products, contact the Department's Division of Domestic and International Trade at (717) 783-3181.

National All-Jersey Holds Annual Meeting

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Nearly 500 Jersey cattle dairy farmers and guests from across the U.S. and four foreign countries were present at the organization's 35th annual meeting in Greensboro, N.C., June 20-23.

Officers of National All-Jersey Inc. reported that over 75-percent of U.S. dairy farmers are now marketing their milk under multiple component pricing (MCP) plans. At current prices, component pricing plans add from 60 cents to $2 per hundredweight to the price paid for Jersey milk. For all Jersey dairy farmers in the United States, the extra return was estimated at $25 million in 1992.

Besides increasing the value of Jersey milk, it was also pointed out that MCP is increasing the demand for Jersey cattle and increasing participation in breed programs.

Officials also reported significant progress toward the organization's goal of implementing MCP in all regulated milk pricing systems by the year 2000. To date, MCP has been either implemented, final decisions rendered, hearings held, or proposals made for thirteen federal orders that regulate 57-percent of all federal order milk production. By year's end, proposals are expected for other orders.

Regarding national dairy policy, NAJ continued its endorsement of a two-faceted program to improve the U.S. dairy economy.

In addition to national adoption of MCP, the organization also advocates higher minimum solids-not-fat standards for fluid milk. Officials emphasized that this approach offers the greatest promise for increasing dairy farmer income, controlling surplus milk production, and increase milk sales, and providing consumers with quality dairy products at the best price.

It was pointed out that such moves have widespread support from producers, processors, and consumers.

The treasurer's report stated that 1992 was a record year for financial participation in the Equity Program, the program that provides financial support to NAJ's MCP efforts. Since the Equity Program's inception in 1976, over $2 million has been voluntarily invested by NAJ members to promote MCP.

Charles Luchsinger Syracuse, N.Y., was elected to a four-year term on the National All-Jersey Inc. Board of Directors. He succeeds Ray Chamberlain, Wyoming, N.Y.

Richard Clauss, Hilmar, Calif., was re-elected to serve a fourth four-year term on the Board. Robert Stryk, Schulenburg, Texas, was re-appointed by The American Jerssey Cattle Club to his second four-year term on the Board.

During the board's reorganizational meeting, Clauss was re-elected president and Ted Luther, Mount Ulla, N.C., vice-president. Other board members are: Dan Bansen, Dayton, Ore., William Barlass, Janesville, Wis., Paul Chittenden, Schodack Landing, N.Y., William Mason, Buhl, Idaho, Richard Riggs, Evansville, Ind., James Rowzee, Newton, Miss., and Ray Schooley, Niangua, Mo. Maurice Core continues as executive secretary and Calvin Covington as general manager.

National All-Jersey Inc. is a national milk marketing organization associated with The American Jersey Cattle Club that assists its members in marketing their milk. It is actively involved in the nationwide promotion of multiple component and higher minimum solids-not-fat standards for fluid milk.

Animal Housing Expo Offers Producer Information studies in the mid-1980s which reflect what kinds of management techniques are necessary depending on varied herd sizes.

But many of the techniques Gamroth will demonstrate come as a result of what is learned at the milking schools conducted yearly by the Oregon State extension offices. The schools, which run over two days, show herd owners and employees the proper procedures before milking. The schools also explain what the somatic cell count is, how mastitis originates, and how to properly treat and manage related herd health problems.

"The schools explain more the 'why' of things rather than the 'how,'" said Gamroth.

National Guernsey Association Reports Actions At Convention

REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO — Positive action was taken by the membership and board of directors to further the future of the Guernsey breed at the annual convention of the American Guernsey Assocation in Dubuque, Iowa.

Positive action was taken by the board of directors on several matters. One was to make changes regarding the current type traits appraisal program. The board passed a motion which stated "Animals owned by individuals housed on same farms may be considered separate herds for appraisal purposes. If any animal is transferred over 15 months of age between herd owners within one year prior to appraisal, then all eligible cattle must be appraised. If both herds are not appraised, then occasional classification rates will be charged if appraised on a regular schedule. However, the minimum herd fee will be $75."

Effective in 1994, junior exhibitors in the national junior Guernsey shows must have cows and calves registered in their names by July 1. This transfer date change from January 1 to July 1 was made to increase the participation in the mature classes at the national junior shows. The January 1 rule will remain in effect for the 1993 show season. The junior entry fee in the All-American contest will be reduced from $20 to $10 per entry. These new fees will go into effect with the 1993 All-American contest.

The membership also took a stand on an important issue at the annual meeting. The vote to eliminate the Guernsey Genetic Growth program from Section K of Article III of the Bylaws of the American Guernsey Association passed by the majority of active membership who voted.

Church Crowned National Guernsey Queen

Amy Church, the 20-year-old daughter of Craig and Gladie Church of Cresco, Iowa, took top honors when she was crowned the 1993 National Guernsey Queen. She has been active with the family's Oak Knob Guernsey herd since she was a small child. As National Guernsey Queen, Church feels that her responsibilities fall into two categories, consumer promotion and producer events. She said, "Consumer promotion is essential to publicize Guernsey cattle and the delicious, nutritious products they provide for us. Equally important is promoting the Guernsey breed to dairy farmers. The national Guernsey queen should promote excellent Guernsey cattle, herds and achievements to producers of other breeds." Church is a junior at Iowa State University where she is majoring in dairy science and agriculture journalism.

Elizabeth Littlefield of Ithaca, New York, was named the first runner-up in the National Outstanding Guernsey Youth contest and received $75 to assist with her travel expenses to the convention. When asked what she would do to change her current operation, Littlefield said, "I would change the calving interval from 13.4 months to 12 months. I feel the faster we can get heifers into our milking herd, and the sooner we can get cows to freshen again, the more return we will get on our investment." She is responsible for milking and doing chores as well as helping set up the feeding and breeding programs on the farm. She also helps with field work when needed. Littlefield, the 20-year-old daughter of Clarence and Sharon Littlefield, is majoring in dairy science at Cornell University and owns 21 Guernseys.

National Guernsey Sale • Proved Successful

"If we host it, they will come" was the perfect slogan for the Iowa Guernsey breeders who hosted the 1993 American Guernsey Association National Convention. Buyers nationally and internationally gathered to bid last on animals selling in the National Convention Sale. Averaging $2,760 on 46 lots, this sale proved a success for American and foreign interests.

Artur Pinho of Brazil was the high bidder on Spring Walk Gingers Janie-ET, making her the highest priced female in the sale at $6,300. "Janie," a Perfecto daughter consigned by Spring Walk Farm of Big Prairie, Ohio, has PA totals of +1,795M and +51P. Her 87 point gold star dam, a Welcome Choice Admiral daughter, has records to 27,260M 1,233F 848P at 5-04 in 305 days.

The second high-selling female was Myrtledales B Most Heather, an 89 point Lincrest Telestar Buttermost daughter. Purchased by Dan and Loretta Mithoefer of Claypool, Indiana, "Heather" is ranked number seven on the January 1993 high CPI list and made 16,800M 817F 526P at 1-11 in 305 days. Her 90 point Able gold star dam has records to 23,130M 1,133F 827P at 4-05 in 365 days. "Heather" has maternal brothers in A.I. and was consigned by Myrtledale Farm of Newberry, SC.

Trotacre Mercury Lora-ET, an Oaklands Mercury daughter consigned by Trotacre Farm of Enon Valley, Pennsylvania, was the third high-selling female for $5,000. Purchased by K.A. Forster of Ontario, Canada, "Lora" has PA totals of +1,650M and +52P. Her 92 point Fayette gold star dam, the well-known Trotacre Fayette Loretta, is ranked number 17 on the January 1993 high CPI list, is the top milk flow queen for the second consecutive year, has sons in A.I. and has records to 32,250M* 1,145F* 1,070P* at 2-11 in 358 days.

Witmer Honored for Distinguished Service

The American Guernsey Association honored Raymond F. Witmer of Willow Street, Pennsylvania, for his distinguished service to the breed.

Witmer's dairy career began in 1937 when he bought his first registered Guernsey as a 4-H calf. In 1952, with the help of his wife Louise, he purchased the home farm from his parents. With his herd of Guernseys at Penn Del Farm, Witmer owned the high herd for fat in his county and the nation, as well as developing two gold star sires, Golden Harvest King Cole and Lake Louise Kings Reliable, who both went into A.I. The Penn Del herd was on official test from its formation in 1952 until it was dispersed in 1988. From 1961 forward, Penn Del Farm was a regular recipient of the Gold Star Breeder Award. Their milk was sold under the Golden Guernsey label to a local dairy until bought out by a larger regional dairy. Witmer paid close attention to production and type to develop a herd with uniformity and longevity.

Witmer has strong ties in the dairy community. Elsie Wolff, a fellow Pennsylvania Guernsey breeder, said Witmer has "always been a strong supporter of the Guernsey cow and her potential to be a leader among the dairy breeds. Raymond is respected in his community as a leader and willing to lend a helping hand." Witmer was certified as an approved judge for all breeds in Pennsylvania by the state's Purebred Dairy Cattle Association and judged cattle for nearly 20 years. He was also active showing cattle in Maryland, Harrisburg, Madison and Louisville. Penn Del Farm hosted the Pennsylvania PDCA judging school twice, along with numerous 4-H, FFA and college judging teams over the years.

In 1987, Witmer received the Charles Cowen Memorial Award for leadership contributing to the improvement and promotion of the Pennsylvania dairy industry from the Pennsylvania Dairy and Allied Industries Association. He received a certificate of appreciation in 1975 from the American Guernsey Cattle Club for sincere dedication and leadership in the Guernsey industry while serving as a member of the Board of Directors from 1965 to 1975. In 1964, he was awarded with the Outstanding Pennsylvania Farmer Award by the American Grassland Council.

Witmer is a member of National Dairy Shrine, a past chairman of Mid-Altantic Guernsey Sires, past president of the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders Association, and a director and class sponsor of the Pennsylvania All-American Show. He has also been the president for Guernsey Restaurants, Inc. for six years. The Witmers have four children.

Special Citation Presented to John Merryman Family

The American Guernsey Association presented a special citation to the John Merryman Family of Sparks, Maryland. The citation was awarded for Merryman's contributions, dedication and loyalty to the Guernsey breed.

The late John Merryman managed and auctioned Guernsey sales for 45 years in 38 states and Canada. He managed nearly every major Guernsey sale in North America and Canada during his long career. By 1977, he had auctioned off 62 of the 66 Guernsey bulls that sold for $10,000 or more. What's more, 86 of the 94 highest-priced Guernseys ever sold were auctioned under his gavel.

Merryman owned some of the finest Guernseys available at that time. Among them was Willow Brook Dena, who at one time held the milk production record for the Guernsey breed. Another was Cleverlands Darimost Chrystal, the highest-scored cow of the breed at that time. Another cow the accomplished cattle enthusiast owned at one time was MD Maple Lawn Maquis Glamour, the dam of Allendairy Glamourous Ivy, the first cow ever sold for one million dollars.

Merryman owned and operated a 500-acre property near Sparks, known as "The Orebanks. He was a former director of the Maryland State Fair, a trustee of the Maryland 4-H Foundation, and Director of the Maryland Guernsey Breeders' Association. In 1991, he was proclaimed the Baltimore County Agriculture Man of the Year. Merryman is survived by his wife Katherine, six children, six grandchildren, a sister and a brother.

Winters Named Master Breeder

Kenneth J. Winters of Mabton, Washington, was named Master Breeder.

Winters has many credentials in his favor earning him the title of Master Breeder. From 1974 to 1991 he was the owner, breeder and manager of Win Crest Guernsey Dairy in Mabton, Washington. He bred over 60 excellent Guernsey cows, including several of the highest-scored animals in the breed! His breeding practices included production as well as type. He bred production leaders and gold star cows, as well as national show winners and All-Americans. He was also well-known for his merchandising abilities when he hosted the Win Crest sales. Through these, he demonstrated that top dollars should be spent for top genetics.

Winters got his start in the Guernsey business as far back as 1950 when he purchased a Chicona Norwyn daughter, Bonneville Vidalia, for $150. "Vidalia" had three daughters and Wincrest Knights Vel, the first 96 point cow in the breed, is a direct descendent from her. Winters was the breeder of four national grand champions, as well as breeding three of the sires of these champions. Three of these four national grand champions went on to produce national class leading records!

Winters has earned the respect of many key leaders in the dairy industry. Doug Wilson, chief executive officer for 21st Century Genetics, said that Ken Winters is a master breeder. He said, "Seldom can anyone look back on a career in cattle breeding and have household names like "Vel" as a part of their contribution. Seldom can people be one of the most talked about breeders of cows in a national show and not even be there! Seldom can people say the name of an individual and everyone across the country instantly respond with, "He bred some of the best!""

John and Bonnie Ayars, prominent Guernsey breeders from Mechanicsburg, Ohio, also speak highly of Winters. They said, "When it comes to the art of breeding good Guernsey cows, very few of us will achieve the level of success that Mr. Ken Winters has mastered. Since a portion of his legacy, Win Crest Vayette Grace, stands in our barn, we feel he is well deserving of this Master Breeder honor. The Win Crest herd may no longer by in business, but the impact on our breed has been positive and progressive. The legacy continues in his prefix and it is most fitting to honor Mr. Ken Winters with Master Breeder."

The 117th annual meeting of the American Guernsey Association will be at the Radisson in Burlington, Vermont, June 24-27, 1994.

The American Guernsey Association is the national organization for the registration and promotion of Guernsey cattle and is headquartered in Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

After Poultry House Fire 70-Year-Old Woman Rebuilds

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WASHINGTON BORO (Lancaster Co.) — Most people remember the Blizzard of '93 as the snow that blocked roads, cancelled school for about a week, and brought industry to a standstill.

Irene Frey remembers it as the time her chicken house burned to the ground because fire engines couldn't get through the snow drifts in time to stop the raging fire.

While most people her age would welcome relief from the daily responsibility of caring for about 17,000 broilers, Irene did not.

"I like chickens," Irene said. "Before my husband died in 1990, he asked how long before we stop raising chickens? I told him not as long as we can do it."

Irene decided that she is still quite capable of raising chickens and no fire is going to stop her from continuing her favorite job.

Before the embers cooled, she was peppering officials with questions: "How's the cement? How's the foundation? Can we rebuild?"

The service representative and building salesperson for Hershey Equipment were hesitant.

"She is one terrific lady to work with and selling chicken houses is my job," said Carl Anthony of Hershey Equipment, "But, at her age, I thought she probably should not rebuild and I tried to discourage her. I wanted her to think of all the drawbacks."

But, for Irene, drawbacks seem nonexistent. Insurance completely reimbursed her for the price of the new building. To rebuild would add to the property value, she reasoned.

She loves chickens and prefers to work rather than retire. A nephew, Craig Frey, and Irene's son, who is a hog farmer, help with equipment repairs and with cleaning out between flocks.

Irene said that during cleaning out, she always takes care of cleaning the stoves and fans but expects cleaning up will be much less of a chore with the newer house.

"She soon had me convinced that she should rebuild," Anthony said. "But I told her if we are going to do it, we are going to do it right."

The previous chicken house was a two-story. Irene agreed that it should be replaced with a one-story house.

Although the newly-erected chicken house is small compared to many of today's sizes, it is not lacking in up-to-date facilities. The poultry house is the new style curtain house, which can be adapted to house swine or turkeys. Thermostats are set between 83-85 degrees. If it gets hotter, the curtains open automatically and close automatically when the temperatures drop. Pan feeders are used instead of the chain feeder that was in the old chicken house.

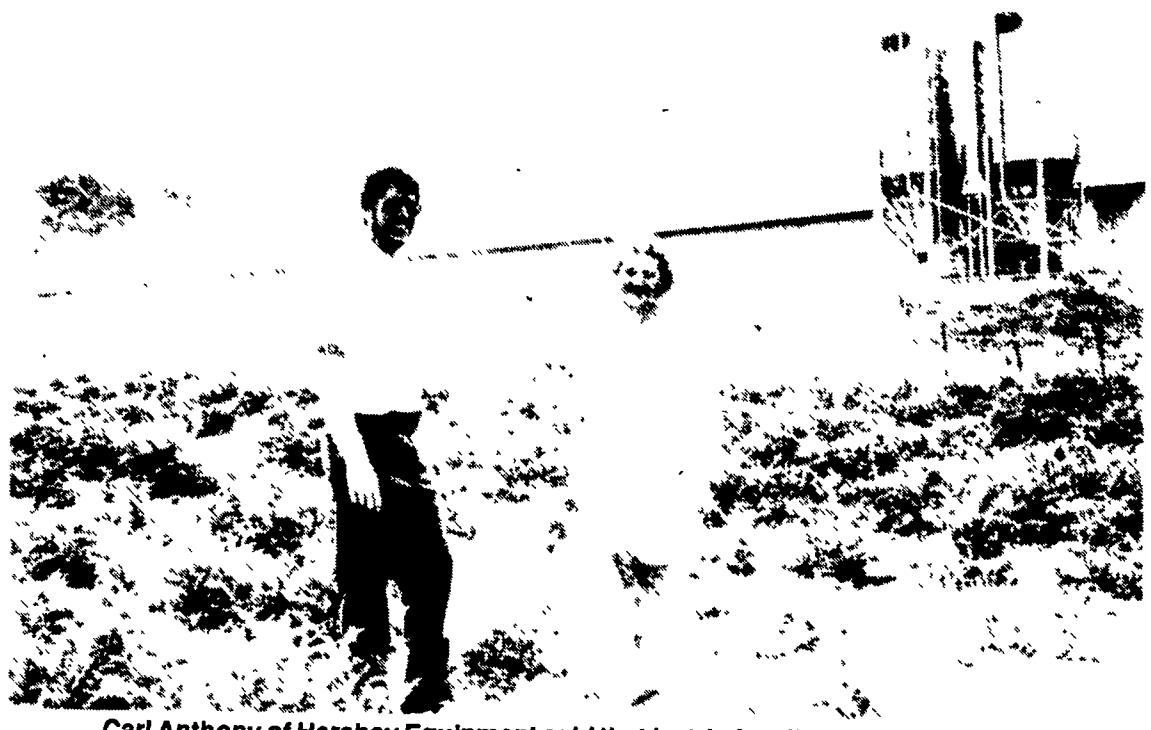
The completely computerized operation turns on the lights at 8:30 p.m. and off at 5:30 a.m. The curtains allow enough lighting for daytime use.

Tunnel fans are used to suck out the heat. A generator line was built to include her home if electric goes off.

Since everything is automatic, Irene said, she doesn't need to do much more than pick up dead chicks and make sure everything is set properly on the computer. She walks through the chicken houses several times a day beginning at 5:30 a.m. and ending around midnight.

"I just like to walk through the house to make sure everything is OK. Then I can sleep better," she said.

What do you do when you are 70 years old, your husband is no longer living, and your chicken house burns to the ground? If you are Irene Frey, you build a new chicken house.



Carl Anthony of Hershey Equipment said that he tried to discourage Mrs. Frey from building a new chicken house, but she convinced him that it was the best decision for her. "She's a terrific lady to work with," Anthony said of Mrs. Frey whose chicken house is computer operated.

This is only part of the huge garden that Irene finds great pleasure in maintaining with the help of two married daughters who live nearby.

She also likes to sit and watch the chickens. "The more time you spend in the chicken house, the more tame the chickens become," she said.

She takes pride in the fact that the chicken catchers reported that her chickens are the tamest they ever catch.

She admits that she still has a lot to learn as far as operating the computer, but is impressed with the many capabilities of the device.

According to Anthony, the computer system is one of the best — only three others like it have been installed in the county. "Because it has the potential to be accessed by a modem anywhere in the world. the system is adaptable to many uses if Mrs. Frey decides to get out of the poultry business," he said.

Irene said that it seemed natural to her to continue farming after her husband had died because her mother had done the same on the dairy farm on which Irene had grown up.

When Irene married her husband Ralph (now deceased), they were in dairying many years before moving to the present farm where they crop farmed rented acreage and raised steers and tobacco. They also custom butchered for more than 10 years, but when the state wanted them to make lots of changes, the Freys decided to build a broiler house instead.

"From the beginning, I liked chickens better than any other of the family members," Irene said. The Freys have five children, who are now grown and live nearby.

Irene said that she constantly updated the two-story structure, but the new building is so much more convenient than the former one.

The fire marshall was unable to pinpoint the cause of the fire, but Irene believes that it was blizzard-related with a possible electrical malfunction.

A neighbor who saw smoke coming from the poultry house called Irene to report the fire. Although the fire company is located about half a mile from the Frey farm, snow plows were unable to open the roads.

Rep. John Barley, a neighbor, used his farming equipment to open a path through the fields, which the fire engines used. By that time, everything had burned to the ground. If the roads would have been passable, Irene surmises that most of the chicken house could have been salvaged or at least the generator room.

The chickens are under contract with Charles' Poultry.

As far as hobbies go, Irene said chickens are her hobby. Another is gardening. Several of the farm's 10 acres are planted with corn, Spanish onions, tomatoes, potatoes, peppers, and other vegetables.

In her spare time, Irene attends country music concerts with family members.

Homestead Notes

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Flowers are important to me-both house plants and outdoor ones. Sometimes I think that I inherited the liking for flowers as my aunt and my cousins practically made their living growing flowers to sell on market. I remember seeing rows of crocks filled with gladiolas in their summerhouses.

In my childhood, I'd pick meadow flowers and sell them for five or ten cents a bouquet. Some of the plants that these people gave me decades ago are still growing in my yard. They are pleasant reminders of people who no longer live. There are five kinds of lilies blooming at the same time.

On Sunday I prepared a floral centerpiece for a refreshment table at our church. Only two people commented on it and they were older ladies. Many folks think that it takes too much time to tend flowers. And, when I want to give bulbs to friends, they often say, "No, thank you" when they find out that they must be dug up in the fall and replanted in the spring.

Some of my flowers reseed themselves and I end up with too many calendulas or larkspurs. The place that they are planted makes a big difference in how well they grow. The Golden Glow and Bee Balm are too prolific now that I've moved them into a sunny area.

And not to be outdone, my husband has a nice rose bed with a variety of colors. He sprays his plants which is something that I've never done. He also puts wood shaving around the plants as he accumulates so much in his woodworking shop. He recently made a picnic table in a few hours for our son. And, he is making four holes in some 20 locust posts for a rail fence around our house. These things plus our gardens certainly keep him busy.

Bechtel Represents Dairy Promotion In Tioga County

MANSFIELD (Tioga Co.) — Becky Bechtel was crowned 1993 Tioga County Dairy Princess by the reigning princess Suzanne Jackson. The pageant was held on Monday evening in Mansfield. Laura Fitch was named alternate dairy princess.

Becky is the 16-year-old daughter of Robert and Dianne Bechtel of R.R. #1 Covington. Laura is the 16-year-old daughter of Elwin and Charlene Fitch of Roaring Branch.

As part of the contest, each girl was required to present a skit or speech promoting dairy products. Both contestants presented skits emphasizing that people should look for the "real seal" on products they buy.

Judges for the pageant were Don Sanders, Agri King representative, Millmont; Jenny Teeter, farm wife, Milan; and Christine Michols, advertising manager Brodhart, Muncy Valley.

The Dairy of Distinction Award was also presented at the pageant to the Jenkins-Pizzaglia Farm located near Roseville. The award was presented by Larue Thomas, District 17 chairman.

Dairy maids, who also assist in promotions, are Heather Wood, Erin Gummo, and Jennifer Johnson.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

What was once a highlight of our childhood summers has greatly changed over the years — and in some cases, simply fallen along the tradition wayside.

Sunday School picnics. Back then, (I'm dating myself) nearly every small town and rural congregation hereabouts held a Sunday School picnic. And each church in a community pretty well knew what date the others would be held. Certain churches had their picnics on certain Saturday nights in certain months — and you could set you calendar on it from year to year.

Though each picnic might have varied details, the basic agenda was the same. A popular, community band, entertained with not acid rock or bluegrass, but "picnic music" of traditional old favorites, marches, patriotic numbers. Food played a major role in a Sunday School picnic, homemade chicken corn soup, or ham, beef or turkey dinners. And home-baked goods for desserts and bake sale tables were generally a donor's specialty — high, rich, and made with extra-loving attention and pride. More than one kid was ordered during pre-picnic preparations: "Keep your fingers out of that, it's for the church picnic!"

Sunday School picnics had an array of neat kids' stuff that we could only get our hands on at such events. We hoarded allowance portions for some weeks in advance, plus usually wheedled from Dad a couple extra nickels or dimes for picnic goodies. Like balsa-wood gliders that inevitably ended up on our house roof or in the cherry tree or the classic paddle-balls with the rubber ball on the end of a rubber band (those paddles met my behind on a few of my less notable days). Hummers, or whatever they were officially called, were gadgets made form a small rectangular, heavy cardboard with a stretched rubber band fastened to one side, trailing a long tail of narrow crepe paper, and which made a humming sound when the toy was swung around one's head on a long string. (Good for "accidentally" swinging into your brother's head.

I know it sounds boring compared to $29.95 Jurrasic Park dinosaur toys. But then this was back closer to REAL dinosaur times, you know.

While grownups visited with long-time old friends about family, the weather, crops, jobs, and assorted neighborhood gossip, we kids woofed down ice cream and soft drinks (we called it soda and it was a treat we rarely had at home), played tag, the boys chased the girls — and vice-versa. The big church cemetery made a great place for hide-n-seek.

This all comes to mind because, while many Sunday School picnics have passed into history, the one put on by our congregation is alive and well - and set for today. Our St. Paul (Hametown) Lutheran Church near Glen Rock has held its picnic the second Saturday in July ever since I married into the congregation there — and many years before that. Often, it hits one of the year's hottest days — and a drenching thunderstorm has wrapped up more than one of our picnics.

We still have a community band — Southern York County — and an all-you-can-eat ham supper. Regulars come from some distance to enjoy the juicy ham, whole-fried new potatoes, green beans, corn, cole slaw, pickles, red beet eggs and fixin's prepared by our congregation of great cooks.

And those dedicated folks who pull this together still offer child and crowd pleasers like penny candy, homemade style ice cream. old-fashioned soda, and novelties. Neighbors and friends will again gather to enjoy a picnic-type band concert, share notes on crops, weather, family — and the neighborhood gossip — while enjoying a cream soda and double scoops of raspberry ice cream.

Other events will keep us from this year's Sunday School picnic. But at a time when many cherished traditions are being forgotten, it's comforting to know that such pockets of history and fellowship live on.

Civil War Comes To Life At Genesee Museum

MUMFORD, N.Y. — The sights and sounds of the Civil War will come to life as Genesee Country Museum presents the eleventh annual CIVIL WAR RE-ENACTMENT on July 17 and 18.

More than 500 Union and Confederate troops will square off at 1 p.m. each day to re-enact a Civil War conflict which will rage through the historic village and end in the Great Meadow with an artillery battle.

Authentic camps will be in place for Union and Confederate troops and civilians. Camps will be open to visitors during museum hours and re-enactors will interpret Civil War life. Other interpretations are given in a doctor's tent, a communications center and by an undertaker, touting his wares.

Visitors who wish to take a break from the action will have an opportunity to meet the President - Abraham Lincoln himself - as portrayed by nationally - known Lincoln impersonator, Frederick Klein. President Lincoln will be on hand to review the Union troops, address the officers of the Army of the Potomac, and to deliver an authentic oration on the steps of the Town Hall.

All activities of the weekend are included in the daily admission price of $10 for adults, $8.50 for senior adults, $6 for youths 13 through 17, and $5 children 6 through 12. Children 5 and under and museum members are admitted free of charge. Museum admission also includes visitation to the John L. Wehle Gallery of Sporting Art and the Nature Center, located adjacent to the village.

The museum is located in Mumford, New York, approximately 35 minutes southwest of Rochester. The museum is open daily in July and August from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. In May, June, September and October, the museum is closed on Mondays. During those months, hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekends and holidays. Maps and directions to the museum are available for the asking at Exit 46 (Rochester) and Exit 47 (LeRoy) of the New York State Thruway. The museum is also a 20-minute drive west of Avon Exit 10 of Interstate 390. It is located two hours north of Corning, NY; two hours west of Syracuse, NY; and a little over one hour east of Buffalo, NY.

Featured Recipe

Irene Frey from Washington Boro is 70 years old but far from choosing retirement. Although her husband died three years ago, Irene continues raising broilers. During the March Blizzard this year, her chicken house burned to the ground. Undaunted, Irene had a new poultry house built because she loves chickens and figured she wasn't ready to stop working.

In addition to raising chickens, Irene grows several acres of produce with the help of two of her adult daughters, who live nearby. It's almost impossible to find a weed among the rows of corn, peppers, tomatoes, onions, and potatoes.

This senior citizen does not have a gray hair in her head. She credits genes from her mother for that and her youthful energy to hard work. Read the featured story about Irene in this section.

This is Irene's favorite spaghetti sauce to can. Clip it for use when the tomato season is in full swing.

SPAGHETTI SAUCE

½ bushel tomatoes
1 pint vegetable oil
3 pounds onions
2 teaspoons garlic salt
8 6-ounce cans tomato paste
4 green peppers
1½ cups sugar
½ cup salt
1 tablespoon sweet basil
2 tablespoons oregano

Cook together tomatoes, peppers, and onions until soft. Strain. Add remaining ingredients. Cook until thick.

To can, fill jars within 1-inch headspace. Adjust lids and process jars in pressure canner at 11 pounds for 20 minutes for pints or 25 minutes for quarts.

Handling Home-Canned Foods

EBENSBURG (Dauphin Co.) — If you think that a jar of home canned food may be spoiled it is important to follow some basic rules to assure the safety of your family and pets, according to Kathryn J. Hostetler, Penn State Cooperative Extension agent in Cambria County.

Never taste food from a jar that is unsealed or when food shows any signs of spoilage, even if the seal is unbroken. You can more easily detect some types of spoilage in jars that are stored without their screw bands because the lid will eventually become loose. Growth of spoilage bacteria and yeast produce gas that pressurizes the food, swells the lid and breaks the seal. As you select a jar for use examine the lid for tightness and vacuum.

Next, while holding the jar upright at eye level, rotate the jar and examine its outside surface for streaks of dried food originating at the top of the jar. Look at the contents for rising air bubbles and unnatural color. While opening the jar, smell for unnatural odors and look for spurting liquid and cotton-like mold growth on top of the food surface and underside of the lid.

Carefully discard any jar of spoiled food to prevent possible illness to you, your family and pets. Before discarding, detoxify spoiled low-acid food by removing the jar lid and placing the jar, its contents, the loose lid in hot water and add enough water to cover the jar. Boil all the items for 30 minutes. Cool and then discard jar contents in the garbage or flush it down the toilet.

If you need up-to-date canning information and recipes, call your county extension office for the following "Let's Preserve Fact Sheets": Apples - Berries - Cherries - Jelly, Jam, Spreads - Peaches, Apricots, Nectarines - Pears - Peppers - Pickles - Sauerkraut - Snap Beans - Strawberries - Sweet Corn - Tomatoes.

1 package dry yeast
3 cups white flour
1 egg white, lightly beaten with 1 tablespoon water

Mix the hot milk, butter, sugar, and salt in a large bowl and let cool to luke warm. Stir the yeast into ¼ cup warm water and let stand 5 minutes to dissolve. Add the yeast and 2 cups flour to the first mixture. Stir vigorously, add enough of the remaining flour so that the dough pulls away from the sides of the bowl. Turn out onto a lightly floured board, knead for a minute or two, and let set for 10 minutes. Resume kneading until smooth and elastic. Put in a buttered bowl, cover and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Punch down and roll out with a rolling pin into ½ -inch thick rectangle. Cut into strips about ½ -inch wide and of uniform length. Place 1-inch apart on buttered cookie sheets, cover, and let rise a little. Preheat oven to 300 degrees. Bake bread sticks for 25 minutes. Remove bread sticks from the oven, brush with egg white mixture and roll in freshly grated Parmesan cheese, seasoned with salt and pepper. Return to oven and bake 5 minutes longer.

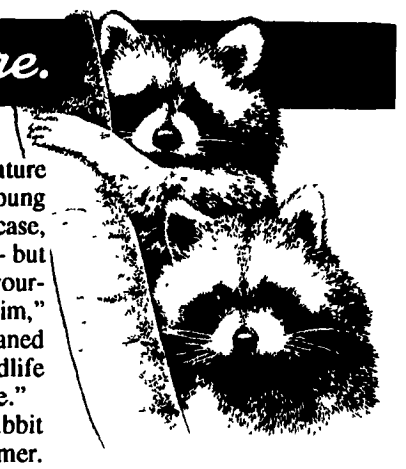
They're wild by nature.



UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Many animals raise their young during spring and summer. But if you come across a young animal, it's best to leave it alone, according to a wildlife specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"People often encounter wildlife, particularly young animals, in the spring," said Dr. Margaret Brittingham, assistant professor of wildlife resources. "Birds, fawns and rabbits are the most frequently encountered wildlife.

"People who try to help animals that seem to be wounded or abandoned have good intentions," she said. "But often they wind up doing more harm than good."

"Many people see a young, flightless bird sitting alone and decide to help by taking it inside," Brittingham said. "Problems soon arise because baby birds are very difficult to raise."

If you leave the bird where you found it, the parents will come to feed it. "It's easy to think that a bird that can't fly is in trouble," she said. "In fact, young birds often leave the nest when they can't truly fly, but can do a hopping half-flight. If you put them back in the nest at this point, they'll hop right back out."

If you're worried that a cat or other animal might get the bird, it's okay to place it out of harm's way in a bush. The adult birds will come back and feed it.

"If you can see the nest, you can put the young bird back in it," Brigtingham said. "It's a myth that if you touch a baby bird the mother will never come back."

If you discover a nest that's tipped over or fallen, pick it up, put the young back in it and place it in the tree. You also can make an artificial nest from a small basket and hang it as close to the original nest as you can. The adults will find the young and return to feed them."

If a cat, dog or other creature kills the adult birds, the young birds may need help. "In that case, you may want to intervene — but if you try to raise the birds yourself, chances of success are slim," Brittingham said. "Take orphaned birds to one of the many wildlife rehabilitators around the state."

People also may find rabbit nests during spring and summer. "Rabbit nests usually are slight indentations in the ground covered with rabbit hair," Brittingham said. "People who come across a nest of baby rabbits often think the babies have been abandoned, but that's not so. Rabbits nurse their young only twice a day, early in the morning and late in the afternoon. The rest of the time the young rabbits are left by themselves. If you find a nest, don't disturb it."

Brittingham notes that rabbits periodically return to check on their young. "If the nest has been disturbed, the adult rabbit will move it. Once my dog came upon a rabbit's nest. I got her away from it and left the nest alone. When we returned to that spot two hours later, the young already had been moved."

People also may find fawns in the woods. "Deer, like rabbits, leave their young alone for long periods of time," she said. "So if you come upon a young animal in the woods, don't immediately assume it's been abandoned. It's more likely that the adult will return later to tend the young."

Brittingham also urges people to remember that you can be injured trying to aid wildlife.

"By handling wild animals, you put yourself at risk of being scratched, bitten or even contracting a disease," she said. "Raccoons, for instance, carry rabies at a high rate. Many people are exposed to the disease each year by having contact with a raccoon.

"The best policy is to leave wildlife wild," she said.

Mosquitoes May Cause Less Itching In Future

SEAN ADAMS
Everybody's Science

A female mosquito can lay as many as 100 to 300 eggs at one time, so it's easy to see why so many of them buzz around on a hot summer night.

But U.S. Department of Agricultue scientists have discovered a hormone — produced by the mosquito itself — that prevents those eggs from hatching. That could mean a whole lot less itching — and a new tool against malaria and other diseases transmitted by mosquitoes in foreign countries.

David A. Carlson of USDA's Agricultural Research Service said that in lab tests the hormone also sterilized biting midges, flies, and fleas. These insect pests, like mosquitoes, need blood for their eggs to develop.

Carlson, a chemist at the Medical and Veterinary Entomology Research Lab in Gainesville, Fla., said a synthetic chemical mimic of the oostatic hormone was injected into female mosquitoes. That hormone inhibited up to 98 percent of the eggs from forming. He said the hormone can also be fed to mosquitoes.

Within mosquitoes, he said, the hormone is present only during certain times in the insect's life cycle. If the hormone is put into the mosquito at the right time, it blocks the production of enzymes that female mosquitoes need to develop their eggs, "essentially sterilizing the females."

Carlson said the discovery of the hormone opens the way to inserting the hormone-producing gene in a mosquito parasite called a spiroplasma. These tiny parasites inhabit more than 100 insect and tick species, as well as some plants. Carlson said three species of spiroplasmas live on mosquitoes, but only one causes disease.

If the gene for oostatic hormone can be inserted into living spiroplasma, the spiroplasma could then be sprayed or applied in some other way on mosquitoes in the field, he said.

Carlson and Dov Borovsky, a chemist at the University of Florida, received a pair of patents in 1991 and 1992 on their discovery of the oostatic hormone and its specific chemical structure.

Carlson said the oostatic hormone works by shutting down the insect's production of a key digestive enzyme called trypsin, produced in the mosquito's gut. Researchers found that the hormone reduced trypsin production by up to 80 percent. "Without enough trypsin, the female cannot digest the blood that she takes in for food," he said. Dr. McMurry, a Geisinger neurosurgeon, says these are the rewards of treating children with cancer - seeing them graduate. Dr. McMurry (right) stands with Dr. Shah, Geisinger's Director of the Department of Pediatric Oncology, and Craig Yoder of Belleville, Mifflin County. Doctors discovered Craig's malignant brain tumor when he was eight years old.

Craig Yoder's Graduation Is Celebration Of Life

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — Commencement. It means a beginning.

Whoever coined the ceremony for graduating seniors chose a positive focus — the start of something new. And hopefully graduates by this time have begun anew and have filed the events of high school under fond memories.

On June 10, Craig Yoder of Belleville accepted his diploma like many other seniors but with one difference. Craig had more than the usual team of teachers, parents, guidance counselors, principals and peers guiding him to that graduating point. He also had a medical team.

Part of that medical team traveled from Geisinger in Danville to attended Baccalaureate. Some visited his Belleville home earlier in the week. Many sent cards. All were celebrating the milestone of graduation for someone they first met as an eight-year-old with a brain tumor.

In June of 1983, after five unnerving months of nauseousness and headaches, Craig faced surgery to remove the malignant tumor, and his family faced the uncertainty of both the resulting side-effects of surgery and possible recurrence.

From that point on, Craig's parents, J. Loren and Wanda Yoder, found out what medical teamwork was all about — teamwork that involved surgeons, radiation-therapists, radiologists, oncologists, nurses, social service agencies and many, many other helpers and healers along the treatment and recovery road.

At Baccalaureate, the piano recessional escorted the seniors, two by two, out of the hot auditorium to where family, friends, and a perfect June evening waited with congratulations.

As cameras flashed throughout the crowd, Craig found his family, then shook hands with two very important members of his medical team, Dr. Shah, director of Geisinger's Department of Pediatric Oncology, and Dr. McMurry, a Geisinger neurosurgeon.

"These are our rewards," said Dr. McMurry looking at Craig in cap and gown. "Craig's tumor was at the base of the brain, obstructing the flow of fluids. We performed surgery to remove the tumor, but there remained uncertainty as to whether it could be adequately treated."

After recovering from surgery, Craig went home to the Yoder's 85-acre Big Valley dairy farm to await the start of radiation treatments. For eight weeks, five days a week, Wanda, his sister Marcia, and Craig drove an hour and a half one way to Geisinger for extensive radiation treatments to the brain and spinal cord.

This trying time turned out to be a low point in the Yoders' fight against cancer for their son's life. Spring and summer field work and daily milking demanded Loren's time with Craig's other sister, Jaylene, shouldered the role as Loren's right hand helper. Wanda, Marsha, and Craig endured the daily trek to Danville, and Craig's trama of sickness from the treatments.

But the endurance paid off.

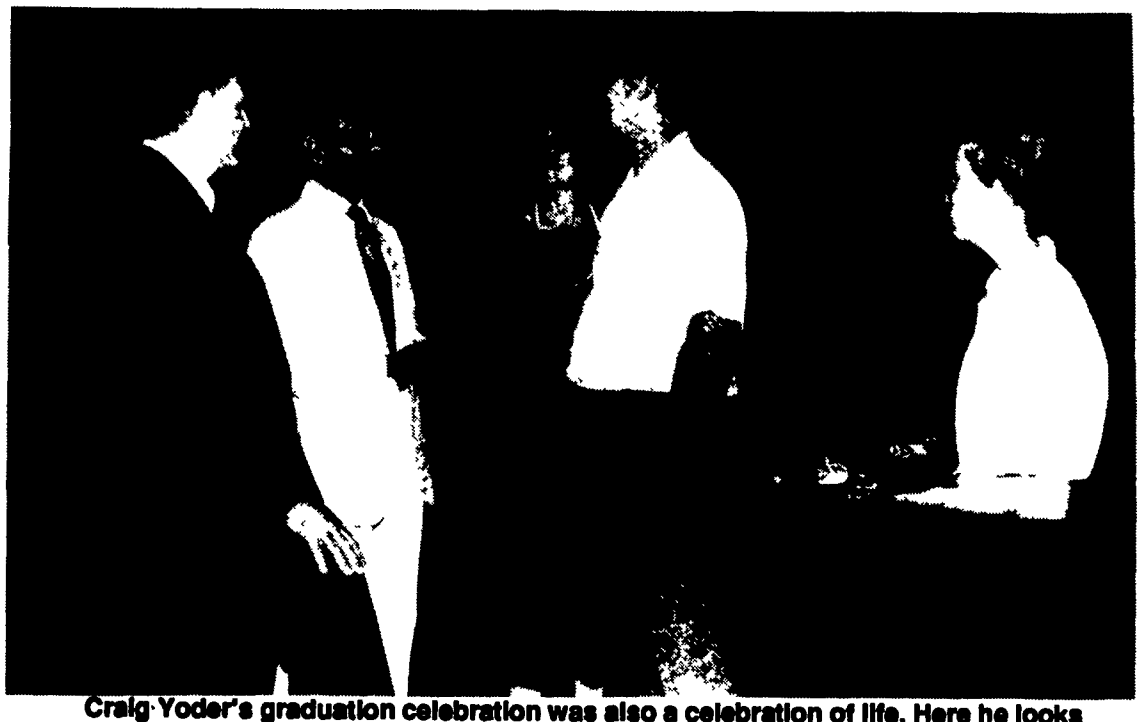
Craig would need no chemotherapy. The X-rays showed no tumor.

Now the beautiful Baccalaureate June evening belied the evil of cancer as the two doctors talked. Dr. Shah spoke of the importance of regular visits with pediatricians for early detection.

"Children must be taken to their own pediatricians regularly to catch it as soon as possible. Children's cancer treatment has come a long way," Dr. Shah emphasized.

His sentiments were echoed by Dr. Clement, associate director, Department of Radiation Oncology at Geisinger, during a telephone interview.

(Turn to Page B15)



Craig Yoder's graduation celebration was also a celebration of life. Here he looks on as Dr. McMurry (left) and Dr. Shah (second from left) talk to Wanda and J. Loren Yoder about the past 10 years of fighting Craig's cancer and about the family-like bond that develops from experiencing the trama, trials, and triumphs together.

Former Dairy Farm Transformed Into Autumn Breeze Nursery

SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

NEW WINDSOR, Md. — It's a family affair at Schmidt's Autumn Breeze Nursery. Suzanne Schmidt and her husband, Bruce Schmidt, who is 'retired', keep busy through the week looking after the family's nursery business. The Schmidts reside in a large Federal-style brick home that is situated along McKinstry Mill Road, New Windsor.

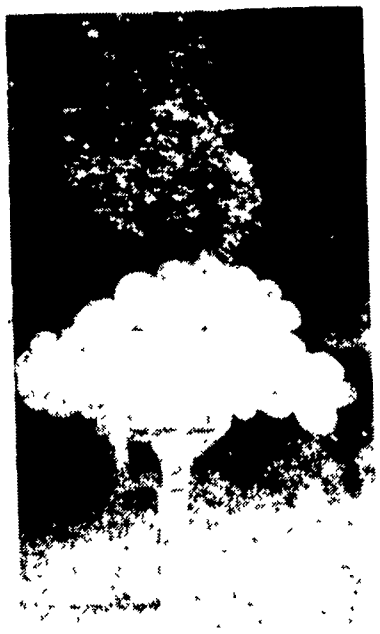
The house is at the heart of the 65-acre operation and it is big enough to accommodate two families and serve as a refuge for their son, Greg, and his family on weekends. The Schmidts' daughter, Wendelyn, who holds a PhD in pharmacology, lives in the former slave quarters of the rambling homestead.

"We love this house," said Suzanne Schmidt. "We've enjoyed fixing it, and have done a fairly decent job." When Greg Schmidt, who holds a degree in horticulture and works as a landscaper in the Silver Spring, Maryland area, was searching for just the right location to start his own nursery, he settled on the former dairy farm, complete with barn, outbuildings, and a fixer-upper of a house.

"We chose this area because we wanted to develop clientele in the area. It is fast-growing. We wanted to be in a 30 to 40-mile radius of the Baltimore-Washington area," explained Mrs. Schmidt. The nursery is just a stone's throw from Carroll County, but officially, it is located in Frederick County, Maryland.

Suzanne Schmidt readies her Federal-style home for visitors on the New Windsor Heritage Committee's Tour of Historical Homes.

Suzanne tends to her herb garden. The farm buildings in the background have been converted to accommodate the nursery business.



Schmidt's Autumn Breeze Nursery supplies landscapers and homeowners with deciduous trees.

"We have only deciduous trees," said Mrs. Schmidt of the nursery stock. Not far from the large established maples around their home are neat rows of young maple trees and flowering trees. "We plant two thousand trees per year," she added. They have planted 12,000 trees since they first established the nursery in 1987.

The family agrees that running the nursery is "labor-intensive work." On any given day, visitors might find Bruce Schmidt behind the rototiller or operating equipment that is crucial to the nursery such as the tree spade, backhoe, tractors, auger or mower. Daughter, Wendelyn, is quick to jump in when she sees that a task has become a 'two-man job.' "I'm the gardener," she quipped.

"I'm the salesperson," said Mrs. Schmidt. "I enjoy it." I let them know what we have and distribute price lists to the nurseries.

Schmidt's Autumn Breeze Nursery is a supplier to the public, as well as to landscapers. The Schmidts' son, Greg, founder of the nursery, oversees all facets of the business and performs his duties on weekends.

The outbuildings at the farm have been converted to accommodate the needs of a different 'branch' of agriculture, so to speak. And the splendid house, which dates to 1812, has been renovated to serve as a lovely and comfortable homestead. The double fanlights above the front entry bespeak the elegance that lies within. The home will be featured on a Tour of Historic Homes, sponsored by the Heritage Committee of New Windsor, on October 3.

The eight rooms of the main house are home to Bruce and Suzanne Schmidt, while the adjoining former slave quarters are home to their daughter, Wendelyn. Each room is a showcase for family heirlooms, antiques, collectibles and the handiwork of family members.

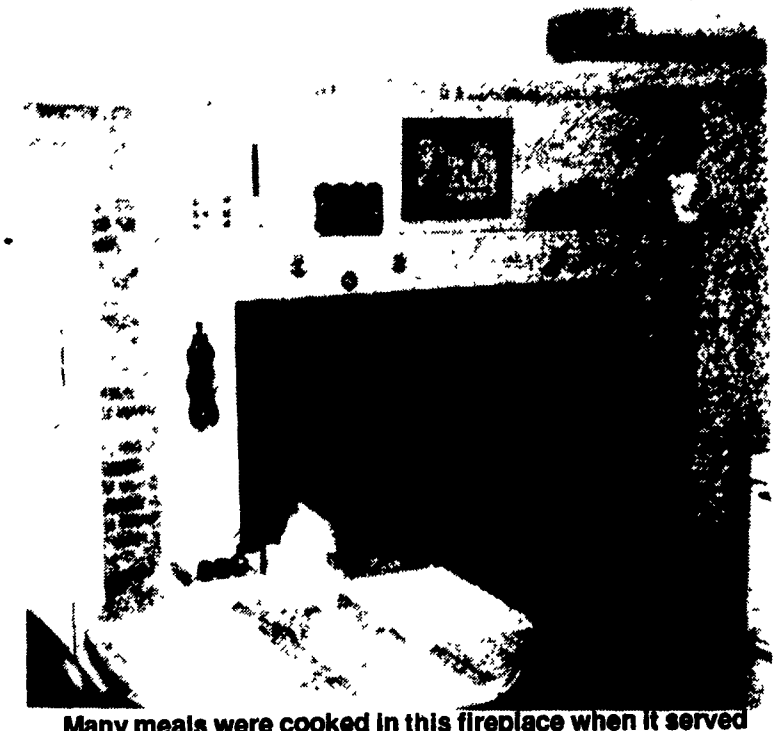
"My father was a tinsmith," said Mrs. Schmidt. His tool chest now serves as a table in the sitting room, and his tools are part of Bruce's collection of antique tools that hang on the wall.

Adjoining the room is a large, eat-in kitchen, which features a fireplace mantel with punch and gouge woodwork. "There is a fire-

(Turn to Page B16)

Suzanna Schmidt's stenciling wraps around the kitchen near the 12-foot high ceiling. The mantel, at left, is an example of "punch and gouge" woodwork.

This bedroom features a pegboard decorated with vintage clothing, antique dolls, and a 10-piece rope bed.



Many meals were cooked in this fireplace when it served the main house. It is now a feature in Wendelyn Schmidt's kitchen. Note the original crane on the hearth. Wendy's collection of harness brasses decorates the mantel. This room was once used as a garage.

Craig Yoder's Graduation

"In radiation therapy, there is quality treatment. With a major childhood illness, go for the best treatment possible and stick with it. Sometimes you don't want to go any more, or the child doesn't want to go on, but with pediatric cancer the results have changed so dramatically in the last 20 years. So many things are treatable now. In the old days with radiation, there was less than 50% of a 5-year survival rate. Now with chemotherapy, the survival rate is greater than 90%."

Dr. Shah also spoke of a multidiciplinary approach to treatment — help from many different departments.

"We treat the whole person," Dr. Shah explained. Siblings may feel they've caused their brother or sister's illness. There are support groups for them. Parents of children with cancer are available to talk to other parents.

"We couldn't handle these cases (of children's cancer) without the children's cancer team," replied Dr. McMurry.

"We look for treatment that can offer hope. In Craig's case there was a lot of uncertainty. We focused on part of the problem, the most treatable, and centered in on the most long term dividend."

So what did and does Craig have going for him?

Perserverence was Dr. McMurry's quick reply. Dr. Shah said persistence. And Dr. Clement, who visited Craig at his home earlier in the week, said, "Craig has a strong spirit. He pushed his way through and put up with a lot, never complained. He did go through a lot of treatment".

"Craig never complained once!" Dr. Shah added. "He knew he needed help and he never lost his faith and hope."

Even when his headaches returned three years later.

In the Yoders' agonizing decision, they chose chemotherapy over a shunt that would drain possibly cancerous fluids into his stomach. Either way, they knew Craig would suffer.

But Craig became so violently ill from the treatments that chemotherapy was discontinued and the building pressure was relieved through a shunt.

Craig's remarkable recovery since then has lasted seven years. And Craig's new beginning began the day after Commencement with a trip to Alberta, Canada with Loren and Wanda.

"Craig illustrates the trade-offs that are made to try and cure a child," Dr. Clement continued. "The short stature and thin hair. But a 10-year-old (for example) has another 70 years to live."

His advice to parents with such agonizing decisions?

Forget all else you have in your life and center on supporting the child.

All three doctors saw the support Craig received from his family and the support his family received from their church and community.

"There are so many broken families now that many children don't have that kind of support," Dr. Shah adds.

The discovery of cancer in a child can rock a family to its core. But children surviving the battle tend to be mature beyond their years. They go through so much to survive their brush with death.

Dr. Shah says children living with cancer learn an important lesson — to enjoy the minutes they do have. It's a lesson we all need reminded of.

Imprint Art

This is a project that lots of parents find absorbing themselves, and is great to do on rainy or cold days. Organize some drawing paper and paints — tempera, poster, or watercolor paints will all work.

Have your child round up some small objects with different shapes and textures: a piece of sponge, a bottle cap, a seashell, a margarine top, and some pencil erasers are all good starters. Now let her dip the object into the paint and use the wet object as a stamp to print designs on the paper. She can experiment with repetitions and with different shapes on one page.

After she has experimented with these objects, try some new ones. A citrus fruit cut in half and dipped in paint makes a beautiful effect on paper. Cutting a potato in half and gashing holes and gullies in it will also produce interesting designs. Improvise with what you have on hand and see what else makes good imprints. Once your child gets the technique perfected, let him make imprints on plain paper or folded notes to use either as thank-you notes from him or as gifts to others in the family!

Shop Smart: Save Money In The Supermarket

How would you like to pay $25 for that basket of groceries, instead of $45 as test shoppers did recently? No, you do not have to win a sweepstakes to realize that 44 percent savings. All you have to do is follow some shopping strategies that will cut your food costs.

The two test shoppers bought basically the same foods. One followed a six-step strategy to reduce food costs; the other did not. The result was that the shopper who was careful spent almost less than one-half the amount spent by the careless shopper.

Although saving 44 percent on your grocery bill may not be possible every shopping trip, most shoppers can regularly save a minimum of 15 percent. All you need to do is invest a little time to examine your current shopping practices and then sharpen your shopping skills. A businesslike approach to food buying can help you use both your time and money more efficiently.

Try these recommended grocery shopping strategies before your next trip to the supermarket:

* Know what you want to buy. Plan the shopping trip before you go to the store. Keep records and try to eliminate or cut down on food items that are expensive and not particularly nutritious.

* Buy when the price is right. Here, keeping good records really helps. Knowing the regular price of an item lets you know when the item is on sale. But do not buy items you do not need just becauses they are on sale.

* Buy in quantity when the price is right. When a nonperishable food staple or non-food item goes on sale, stock up on it. Try to set five to ten dollars of your grocery money each week for stocking up on staples on sale. Once you start building a supply of specials at home, shopping trips will be shorter and centered around buying new specials to replenish your stockpile. You will not be forced to buy a lot of items at regular price. Do not try to stock up on perishable items like milk because they may spoil before you can use them.

* Compare price and size. Check unit price stickers for the best price. Larger sizes are usually cheaper per food unit...but not always.

* Buy the product, not the name. Buying a low-priced, rather than high-priced, brand is an important shopping strategy.

* Consider the competition before you shop. Compare advertisements from several stores. Make a list of 10 items that you regularly buy that are featured in the ads, and see which store offers the best prices on those items.

* Make a grocery list before you leave home, and stick to it. Make it out according to the layout of the store. This will save you time as you won't have to backtrack to find things on your list.

* Use cents off coupons for items on your list.

* Don't shop when you are hungry.

Do not be discouraged by the fact that some purchases made using these strategies will involve saving only pennies. The money will add up over time. Over the course of 30 years a family can spend more than $100,000 in the grocery store. Saving 15 percent of that means an extra $15,000 in tax-free income.

Former Dairy Farm Transformed

place in every room," pointed out Mrs. Schmidt. The family makes good use of them on chilly fall days.

"One of the first things I bought was a ladder," mused Mrs. Schmidt. The 12-feet high ceilings made her stenciling project a challenge. Using her new ladder, she climbed to the top of the kitchen cabinets where she was then able to apply her stencil design to the top edge of the walls from her lofty perch.

The parlor and dining room both feature ornate fireplaces with side cupboards. All of the doors in the house carry the original faux grain finish. Rugs, hand-braided by Mrs. Schmidt's parents, cover some of the refinished pine floors.

The open staircase rises from the grand foyer to the third floor attic. At the second level, a set of side steps goes off from one corner into a bedroom. "We had to buy armoires," explained Mrs. Schmidt. Like most homes of that era, there are no original closets in the bedrooms.

Each of the three bedrooms show the design and handiwork of Mrs. Schmidt and her daughter. "We did all the window treatments." A quilted wall-hanging featuring wildflowers, hand made by Wendy Schmidt, hangs in the master bedroom. Vintage clothes are draped on the original pegboard in the guest room, and antique dolls, marble-top furniture and collectibles complete the decor.

Just over the threshold and around the corner is "Wendy's place," located in the attached former slave quarters. The furnishings and decor of the spacious three-level home reflect Wendy's love of books. One small volume on the shelves is BRUISED REED. "It was found in the attic," explained Wendy Schmidt. Inscribed on the inside is, "Oak Orchard Sabbath School."

Another hand-braided rug covers a portion of the chestnut floor in the dining area. Wendy's window treatments frame a wonderful pastoral view of the neighbor's dairy cows through the wavy panes of glass.

Old editions of the BALTIMORE SUN newspaper dated 1885, were found rolled up, used as insulation around the deep window sills.

One of the most interesting rooms is the kitchen. Most of one wall is devoted to the large fireplace, which, according to Wendy, was the site of cooking for the main house and for the crews. The original crane is still in the hearth. "I just started collecting harness brasses," added. Wendy. Some of her collection decorates the mantel of the fireplace. It may be difficult for visitors to believe that cars were once parked on the original herringbone brick floor. "It used to be a garage."

The tiered porches overlook the vast rows of trees in the family's nursery. Just a few steps out the door, across from the smokehouse, Wendy has established a rock-walled garden. Her mother's herb garden is nearby. And Mrs. Schmidt has only to ring the loud bell outside to summon the family for dinner at the homestead.

Schmidt's Autumn Breeze Nursery is located at 9932 McKinstry Mill Road, New Windsor, Maryland 21776. The business telephone number is (410) 635-2634. For more information about the New Windsor Heritage Committee's Tour of Historic Homes coming on October 3, call (410) 875-2054.

Hess's BBQ & Catering Wins Beef Backer Award

Kelley Shearer, foodservice coordinator for the Pennsylvania Beef Council, presents the Beef Backer Award to Lloyd, left, and Paul Hess, owners of Hess's Barbecue Shop and Catering.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — People still want beef, just more variety, says Lloyd Hess, co-owner of Hess's Barbecue Shop and Catering, recently named the 1993 Beef Backer by the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

Hess's, owned and managed by Lloyd and Paul Hess, have understood and adjusted to meet consumer needs for the past 15 years. Hess's, Willow Street, have expanded from a small butcher ship, initially, to the fourth largest catering service in Pennsylvania, a start to the finish beef butchering operation and two barbecue take-out shops.

Kelly Shearer, the foodservice coordinator for the Pennsylvania Beef Council, presented Paul and Lloyd Hess with their 1993 Beef Backer award at the opening celebrations of Hess's second barbecue take-out shop, on July 25.

Lloyd says Hess's opened their second barbecue take-out shop in response to consumer's increased demand for take-out meals. The recently opened shop is located at their Willow Street catering headquarters. Their other barbecue shop is located in Roots Farm Market, which is open every Tuesday evening.

Hess's has also noticed an increase in catering; they presently serve between two and three thousand people per week. Hess's catering features only USDA choice meat that is slow cooked in custom pit roasters over charcoal, basted in their secret award winning barbecue sauce.

Beef constitutes 65% of Hess's sales and their menu features beef ribs, prime rib and chopped sirloin steak.

Although Hess's notices a demand shift towards catering and take-out meals, Lloyd says he is proud to own such a diverse foodservice business. "We can slaughter your beef for you as well as cook it and serve it," says Lloyd.

"The Beef Backer award is our way of thanking Hess's for representing and promoting only the highest standards for beef," says Shearer. "Hess's has been innovative and aggressive in marketing quality beef products."

4-Her's Have Fun While Learning

When most people think of youths doing something educational while on summer vacation, one word frequently comes to mind: Impossible!

This is not true of 4-Her's, however. 4-Her's are members of a program called, obviously enough, 4-H.

4-H is a program of informal education for youth. As a part of the cooperative extension system, 4-H is conducted jointly by federal, state, and county governments.

4-H members are gathering together on Tuesday, July 20, from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Red Barons Stadium and Montage Resort in Scranton for Demonstration Day, a day filled with both learning and fun.

4-Her's will be doing demonstrations of approximately five to 10 minutes in length which will be based upon things which they have learned through their 4-H projects in the past year. The competition will be divided into two divisions — junior (8-12 years old) and senior (13-19 years old), and will be a wonderful opportunity for children and teens to improve their public speaking skills.

Longwood Gardens Holds Gardening Classes

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — The Fall 1993 Continuing Education Program at Longwood Gardens has been recently announced. Beginning on August 4 and continuing through December 14, a wide variety of courses and evening lectures will be offered in the magnificent horticultural environment of Longwood Gardens, former estate of Pierre S. duPont near Kennett Square.

Launching the early season from August 4 through September 22 will be the Series I Certificate of Merit "Perennials" course, emphasizing the identification and use of over 45 outstanding perennial plants. A second Series I Certificate Course, "Ground Covers," will be taught from September 27 through November 15, and will emphasize the identification, culture, and use of over 60 different hardy ornamental ground covers. Both courses include illustrated lectures by the lead instructor and four plant-study walks conducted on site by qualified assistants. Each course awards a certificate if successfully completed and completion of all eight Series I courses awards the Longwood Gardens Certificate of Merit in Ornamental Plants. Students are allowed free admittance to Longwood Gardens and to the Longwood Library for the duration of either course.

"Trees II", taught August 10 through September 21, and "Evergreens II", taught September 23 through November 4, are the next two courses in the Series II Certificate of Merit Program. Both courses will expand on the corresponding subjects in the Series I Program and offer identification, culture, and landscape use of plant material not widely used in most landscapes or taught in most other courses. Course structure and requirements are the same as those for the Series I Certificate Program.

"Botany for Gardeners III: The Plant's Systems" emphasizing plant structure, cell functions, and plant growth, "Identifying Trees in Winter," featuring use of plant keys, and "Pruning Basics," which returns by popular demand, are designed to increase the practical horticultural knowledge of both the amateur as well as professional gardener.

For the first time, Longwood offers "Intermediate Bonsai" as a follow-up to the basic Bonsai course offered in Spring. "Propagating Perennial Plants" and "Designing Your Garden With Flowers" return by popular demand.

Longwood's fall offerings in the category of Art & Design include the eight-session "Drawing and Painting the Seasons at Longwood," featuring instruction from well-known local artist Anna B. Francis, "Advanced Floral Design" and "The Holiday Centerpiece" taught by staff display specialist Diana Ferich, "Fundamentals of Landscape Design," emphasizing practical solutions to common design problems, and the ever-popular "Holiday Decorations."

Five outstanding evening lectures are planned for the season. Each evening lecture begins at

FIELD DEMO on Forage Harvester Tuesday, July 13 10 AM to 4 PM Contact M.M. WEAVER FOR DETAILS 717-656-2321

CLAAS of America proudly introduces the world's largest selling forage harvester: the CLAAS® Jaguar 695. Tested and proven worldwide, the Jaguar possesses power and speed, while offering reliability, performance and advanced technology unmatched by the competition.

The heart of the Jaguar is CLAAS's 24-knife, precision engineered cutting cylinder that gives a clean, superior chop. The angled knives draw the crop toward the center, producing a smooth, steady flow through to the discharge chute. The knives' "scissors action chop" ensures a cleaner cut. And all of this is done with minimal power requirements.

An automatic electrohydraulic knife sharpener is standard. The shearbar is easily accessible and quickly adjusted.

CLAAS's field-proven, 4-trac mechanical rear wheel drive carries the Jaguar efficiently through any field condition. This optional 4-trac four wheel drive unit can be engaged on-the-go.

The full visibility cab is air conditioned, heated and soundproofed for operator comfort. A multi-function control lever puts control of all harvesting functions at the operator's fingertips. The world renowned Mercedes 354 hp V8 diesel engine means reliability and economical operation.

An optional corn cracker maximizes feed quality by ensuring a fully digestible harvest. Independent studies show CLAAS's unbeatable corn cracker is nearly 100% effective.

The Jaguar's 6-row corn head is the world's only folding corn head. This unique header comes with "Auto steer" to guide the Jaguar automatically through the rows, assuring ease of operation.

The unique cutting cylinder is the heart of the Jaguar 695.

CLAAS offers the world's only folding 6-row corn head. It also fits John Deere and New Holland forage harvesters.

Pickup attachments from 7′ to 14′ are available.

Every Jaguar is backed by CLAAS's commitment to quality in sales, service and parts replacement.

Longwood Gardens

7:30 pm and is followed by a dessert reception and a chance to speak with the lecturer.

On Monday, September 13, Margaret Hensel, garden lecturer and photographer, will present "Cottage Gardening in England and America," based on her newly published book. Her lecture, to be held in the Visitor Center Auditorium, will be illustrated with slides she has taken in the many private and historic gardens she has visited and studied.

Diana Ferich, AIFD and Longwood's Floral Display Specialist, will present a fast-paced symposium style lecture "Wreaths, Swags, & Topiaries for Fall" on Monday, November 4, in the Conservatory Ballroom. Emphasis will be placed on explanation of design styles and elements and a silent auction will be held following this lecture where participants may bid on the finished arrangements.

On Wednesday, October 20, in the Conservatory Ballroom, Longwood Gardens is proud to present "Bold Romantic Gardens and the New World Landscape," an evening with Wolfgang Oehme, horticulturist, garden designer, and co-author of the book of the same title. Wolfgang Oehme is well-known for his adventurous and expressive designs and his commitment to "bringing nature more fully into our lives."

World-renowned paleontologist Dr. Robert Bakker will advance the newest thinking yet on how plants and dinosaurs co-evolved in his evening lecture entitled "How Dinosaurs Invented Flowers." This exciting presentation is drawn from a chapter of his controversial book, The Dinosaur Heresies. It will be held in the Conservatory Ballroom on Monday, November 1, in conjunction with the opening festivities of this year's Chrysanthemum Festival display featuring topiary dinosaurs.

The final evening lecture, "Historic Plants at Jefferson's Monticello," will feature Peggy Newcomb, Director of the Thomas Jefferson Center for Historic Plants at Monticello, as she illustrates how Jefferson's horticultural heritage is being furthered by an active organization committed to preservation of the historic plants grown by Jefferson.

EARLY REGISTRATION IS RECOMMENDED AS SPACE IS LIMITED. For further information, including prices and a detailed schedule, contact the Continuing Education Office, Longwood Gardens, P.O. Box 501, Kennett Square, PA 19348-0501 or telephone 215-388-6741 Ext. 516, weekdays 8-11:30 am or 12:30-4 pm.

Continuing Education Programs and lectures are offered by Longwood Gardens, the former estate of Pierre S. du Pont near Kennett Square.

Pennsylvania FFA Association.

There were more than 1,200 members, advisers, and guests present for the convention, held on the University Park Campus of the Pennsylvania State University.

Stacey Graves, the regional diversified livestock production winner, was selected through a personal interview process to be the state winner. Dennis Ackley was named the state proficiency home and/or farmstead improvement winner. Each received a $75 check and a plaque provided through the Pennsylvania and National FFA Foundation.

Their applications will be updated and submitted to the national level. The top candidates in each of the 29 proficiency areas from each of the four national regions will travel to Kansas City, Mo. in November for the national winner level.

In the land use and management contest, Angie Miles earned a fifth place gold award. The team finished second in the state.

Four different sites were evaluated for percent slope, stoniness, soil texture of the surface and subsurface soil, depth of soil, and internal drainage. Recommendations were made for the best use of the land for agricultural purposes, residential use, urban development, or pond building.

Twelve classes of sheep, swine, and beef cattle made up the livestock judging contest. Classes included six placing classes of four animals each, based upon type; one grading class each of slaughter cattle, slaughter hogs, and feeder cattle; a keep-cull cattle class and one for sheep; and an oral reason class on one of the placing classes. Dennis Ackley placed fifth gold.

The meats evaluation contest involved the identification of 30 retail cuts of beef, lamb, and fresh or cured pork; judging classes of four wholesale cuts of beef or pork; determining the yeild grade of beef carcasses; determining the correct formulation of meat products for ground or processed meat products; plus taking a 50-item test on meats, slaughterng, storage, and cookery. Laurie Wildman placed seventh and silver award. The team, which also consisted of Stacey Miles and Josh Dibble finshed third.

The chapter was the recipient of three state level awards, based upon applications submitted or from chapter activities. The awards included national chapter award, national chapter safety award, and a gold award for contribution to the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation through citrus sales.

ACKLEY NAMED OUNSTANDING AG STUDENT

Dennis Ackley, son of Mr. & Mrs. Michael Ackley and Mr. & Mrs. James Mecheam of Westfield, R.R. 3, was recently named the winner of the 1993 Dekalb Agricultural Accomplishment Award.

The award, sponsored nationwide by Dekalb Plant Genetics, is presented to the outstanding senior agriculture student demonstrating superior scholarship, leadership, and supervised agricultural program.

Dennis attended Cowanesque Valley High School, where he has been very active in the agriculture program and the FFA. He has served the local and county FFA chapters as an officer, judged livestock on the county and state levels, earned the Star Greenhand, Chapter Farmer, Chapter Agribusiness, and Area Farmer award on the way to the state degree, and attended the National FFA Convention. He has received the Northeast Farm Credit recordkeeping award and the Outstanding Farm Credit Senior Award, as well as the Lynn Doan Agricultural Memorial Award and the Senator Madigan Outstanding Citizenship Award. His program has consisted of beef breeding, growing, and finishing; swine breedding and finishing; off-farm work experience; and home/farm improvement.

MANAGEMENT OF THE COW HERD DURING DROUGHT CONDITIONS

I am writing this article so it will rain. It seems that every time we start having some dry weather, I write a column about caring for the cow herd during drought conditions. It also seems that every time I do that, it begins to rain the day before the column appears. So, I am writing this so it will rain.

Murphy's Law works very well in drought conditions. Health problems, low reproductive rates, and lower performance in the herd can be expected this year. To help reduce these problems, there are five practices to consider.

First, early weaning of the calf crop will reduce the lactational stress on the cow herd and therefore reduce the feed requirements of the herd. In some herds, spring-calving cows are well past their peak of lactation, and most of the nutrition going into the calf is coming from pasture and supplemental feeds.

The key is to address the needs of the calf for feed. Use a high quality forage or pasture with a grain mixture of 60 percent cracked corn, 30 percent whole oats, and 10 percent soybean meal with enough molasses added to bind it together, and feed at the rate of ½ to 1 percent of the body weight of the early-weaned calves. For example, calves averaging 300 pounds would eat 1-½ to 3 pounds of the grain mix per day.

Address the needs of the cow based on whether she is already pregnant or if she is still in the breeding season. The major nutrient required is energy, not protein, for cows past their peak of lactation, so use grain to supplement poor pasture or emergency hay feeding. We are in a unique, although positive, period right now in that we are short on grass, but the prices of corn and wheat are fairly cheap.

Rotate pastures and take advantage of periods of grass growth. When given the opportunity, cattle will tend to eat the best grass first, then continue to eat lower quality grass as long as it lasts. A good rotation scheme will allow you to take advantage of all the grass that is available because it forces the cow to eat everything that is available.

When it does rain, the first thing to do is to start shutting some gates, and restrict the cattle to smaller areas until they have all of it harvested, then move them to fresh areas.

When the bulls have been removed from the pasture for 60 to 75 days, call your vet and have them pregnancy-check the cow herd and cull those that are found to be open. In times when feed is costly and in short supply, feeding an open cow is a real economic drain.

The cost of the vet call will be more than offset by the savings in fall and winter feed that would go through a cow that will not return anything next year. Try to locate some unconventional, but effective, feeds. In this area there are many opportunities to use food processing wastes as cattle feed, and these feeds are often very nutritious. This would include apple pomace, bakery waste, cull potatoes, potato chip waste, and vegetable canning waste.

When feeding any waste products, remember to use it as a supplemental and not a primary feed. The major nutritional requirement of a cow herd in the fall and early winter is energy and not protein. Most food wastes are high in energy, but products such as potato chip waste are also high in fat, so the amount fed should be kept at 20 percent of the diet or less.

Foreign objects (glass, metal, etc.) can be a problem. The amount of water in the products is usually also pretty high, so care must be taken to be sure it is cost-effective to use "free" feed that is high in water. For example, some vegetable waste may be available for the taking, but a load may cost $10 per ton to move it and another $10 worth of yours or someone else's time. If the product is 50 percent water, the cost is $40 per ton. Is there some good hay available from the neighbor for $40 per ton?

Finally, do the management practices that are most cost-effective under any conditions. This would include implants, deworming, and vaccinations. There are few times when these practices will not more than pay for themselves. Some implants cost less than a dollar, but can increase calf gains 10-20 percent while also reducing feed requirements.

It is surprising to most people, but worm infections are actually reduced during dry weather. The infective worms picked up by the

BEWARE OF WILD DUCKS ON DOMESTIC DUCK PONDS

Donald L. Singletary
DVM, Dept. of Veterinary Science

This article is for all those who have a duck pond.

Recently, the Penn State Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory had two cases of duck virus enteritis and a telephone call describing another suspected case. The Dutch called the disease eendenpest, and the Germans called it entenpest. It is also known as duck plague. The disease is relatively new in the United States, having been detected here in 1967.

As the name indicates, duck virus enteritis affects primarily ducks. Geese and swans are also susceptible but chickens and turkeys are not. Ducks of all ages are affected. The losses can be substantial and economically devastating. In one of the cases we examined, 50 percent of the flock died within a few days.

The disease is caused by a herpesvirus. The first sign of a problem is finding dead ducks. The disease strikes suddenly and kills quickly.

Where do the domestic ducks get this disease? They get it from wild ducks that have had the disease and recovered. But now they are carriers of the disease virus, shedding it to other ducks. Therefore, it is important to understand that domestic ducks on a pond that mingle with wild ducks will most likely become infected.

Unfortunately, there is no effective treatment for sick ducks. A live injectable vaccine is available as an aid in preventing the disease in commercially raised domestic ducks.

Outbreaks of the disease need to be reported to state regulatory officials.

The most important thing to remember is that wild ducks carry the disease to domestic ducks. The best method of preventing the disease is to discourage and prevent domestic ducks from associating or mingling with wild ducks on farm ponds.

Maintain Quality, Wheat Producers Advised

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Since moisture contributes to the deterioration of stored grain, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) reminds farmers to harvest their wheat as dry as possible.

"Proper storage and handling procedures must be followed to maintain the quality of the wheat crop and eligibility for price support loans," said Richard Troutman, chairman of the Berks County ASCS.

Wheat placed in storage with a high moisture content will create an environment for infestation and cause deterioration in stored grain. Fungal spores can then be distributed throughout the grain by migrating insects.

Troutman said older crop grain is the primary source of insects that infest newly harvested grain, and unless steps are taken to prevent crossover infestation, several generations of insects could develop on summer-harvested wheat before cold weather temperatures restrict development.

Troutman advised producers to frequently inspect wheat under loan that is stored on the farm to assure that the grain remains in good condition. He pointed out that small residues of grain in conveyors, trucks, and harvestors should be removed before harvest to prevent newly-harvested wheat from becoming contaminated.

Beef Briefs

cattle off the grass need moisture, so dry, dusty conditions do not lend themselves to worm growth.

However, worm infections have already occurred for most cattle when there was more lush grass, so deworming will still be very effective. If you plan to keep your calves for more than a month or two, and if they will be in a confined area, you may want to consider the whole battery of vaccinations for the respiratory diseases. This would include IBR-BVD-PI3 for cows and calves, plus haemophilus, pasteurella, and BRSV for calves.

The additional stress on nutrition and reproduction of the cow herd during a period of drought strikes the heart of the economics of the cow-calf enterprise. These five practices will not eliminate all of the effects from drought, but they will surely help.

WORK EXPERIENCE PAYS DIVIDENDS TO COLLEGE GRADUATES

Erskine H. Cash
Professor of Animal Science

This fall, Christine Anderson will begin her senior year at Penn State, where she majors in dairy and animal science.

This summer, Christine is working as an intern for the weekly farm newspaper, Farm and Dairy, an experience she said is one of the most important building blocks of her career.

"This internship is providing me with a most-needed shove into agricultural communication. I am involved in all projects that the editors and staff writers do," said Christine. "No class I've ever taken compares with this experience."

One of the toughest decisions a college student faces is choosing a major field of study. Very few undergraduates know exactly what kind of work they want to do after they get their diploma. Studies show that, even when the decision seems to have been made, students change majors an average of three times before identifying the major that best meets their personal and career goals.

Internships, sometimes referred to as work experience, can help students identify the right "mix" of professional career and personal interests. And they can receive college credit while earning funds to support their education.

Typically a semester in length, internships are really a win-win-win situation. That is, the student, the employer, and the university all benefit. Faculty advisors report that internships help develop positive relationships with the business community and encourage community support for university programs. In addition, they receive valuable student feedback which can effect curriculum change.

Employers say that most interns are highly motivated employees who often contribute fresh, new ideas to their company. According to George Patrick, general manager of Taylor Packing Company, "These students are dependable, capable, enthusiastic, and have a desire to learn. Internships allow employers to evaluate the technical and people skills of potential full-time employees before making a commitment."

Linda Stumm, employment and recruiting specialist with Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore, said, "The employer has a chance to attract quality students. Farm Credit hired three of five interns in the first year of the company's participation in the internship program." According to Stumm, they would have hired the other two, as well, if they hadn't relocated to other states.

Erskine H. Cash

These students really get one foot up on others at graduation, because employers are often more willing to hire someone whose work habits and skills are known, she said.

As for the students, the best proof of the value of the internship experience is found in the comments from these dairy and animal science majors who work as interns:

• Henry Zerby, junior, who works at Arbor Acres Farm, Inc., a multinational poultry company specializing in broiler breeding in Glastonbury, Connecticut: "This internship helps me appreciate and apply what I have learned in the classroom to real situations. I know it will give me an advantage as I make decisions that will impact my career and future."

• Jackie Reed, junior, who works at Camelot Animal Hospital in Uniontown, Pa.: "This experience has enabled me to discover many facets of veterinary medicine that I was previously unaware of. It has deepened my desire to pursue veterinary medicine with more confidence, drive, and passion."

• Jason Ahola, junior, who works at Glenkirk Farms in Maysville, Mo., and previously worked at Bon View Farms in Canova, S.D.: "My work experience with beef cattle has provided hands-on training and a network of personal contacts. It has generated an increased sense of independence for me."

And from previous interns who have graduated and are now fully employed:

• Barry Sands, a loan officer for Northeastern Farm Credit, ACA, in Lewisburg, Pa.: "My internship with Farm Credit provided job experience, as well as insight into job requirements, demands, and rewards. I could determine if the position was right for me before making a commitment. I think the experience can benefit me in any field."

• Kelley Shearer, retail and food service coordinator for the Pennsylvania Beef Council: "Serving as a representative for the beef and veal industries during my internship greatly enhanced my communication and public relation skills through interaction with both producers and consumers. It gave me a great head start for employment after graduation."

• Meredith Rapp, zookeeper at Elmwood Park Zoo, Norristown, Pa.: "My internship at the zoo was an invaluable learning opportunity. I gained practical experience and utilized my academic background in animal science — both were vital tools in finding employment."

• Steve Jones, assistant herd manager, Genetics, White Oak Mills, Inc., Elizabethtown, Pa.: "The internship with Murphy Farm, Inc. in North Carolina provided my first exposure to large-scale swine production. This experience helps me with problem-solving situations in my present position."

• Beth Lair, extension agent, 4-H/youth, Mercer County, Mercer, Pa.: "My work experiences gave me a realistic outlook on farm management positions, improved my skills in working with people, and enforced my personal goal of working as a 4-H extension agent."

The College of Agricultural Sciences Alumni Society (CAAS) recognizes the importance of a planned on-the-job learning experience to prepare undergraduate students for today's competitive job market. The CAAS provides ten $500 cash awards to qualifying students completing internships. Interested students should call the department's Office of Student Services at (814) 865-7638 or (814) 863-3664.

If you or your company would like to provide an internship experience for an undergraduate student, contact Erskine Cash, Department of Dairy and Animal Science, 324 W. L. Henning Building, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-3662.

Universal Introduces Positive Oil Displacement Vacuum Pump

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Universal Dairy Equipment has taken a good idea and made it even better.

The new MXL pump introduces positive oil displacement to the dairy industry. The design builds upon the success of the popular Masport® pump from Universal.

The wash cycle can be tough on pumps. Because of the lower vacuum level, less oil is drawn through the pump, and vapors from chlorine and other cleaning chemicals can dry it out.

Positive oil displacement, however, guarantees the lubrication of bearings at start-up, as well as throughout the wash cycle. The oil still is run through a reclaimer, but dairy farmers don't have to bother adjusting the vacuum level because the MXL is fully automated.

Automatic and adjustable direct oil feed to both ends of the main bearings and all other moving parts provide positive, trouble-free, and continuous lubrication. The MXL pump is available in 5- or 7.5-horsepower models in the same configurations as standard Masport pumps, with polyvinyl tanks.

The quality of the MXL vacuum pump is backed by a two-year warranty.

Vintage Tractors In 1994 DuPont Calendar

WILMINGTON, Del. — Meticulously restored farm tractors from 12 states and Ontario, Canada, have been selected for the 1994 DuPont Classic Tractor Calendar, produced by DuPont Agricultural Products.

Tractors chosen are from Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa (2), Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ontario, Ohio (2), Tennessee and Wisconsin. The Maryland tractor, a 1912 Case 9-18, has been selected for the cover of the calendar.

Why are there 15 tractors? "It is a 13-month calendar (December of 1993, plus the 12 months of 1994) with two additional tractors featured on the front and back covers. This allows us to picture more of the beautifully-restored machines," said Matt Reinhart, a product manager for DuPont Agricultural Products.

Judges select the final 15 tractors to be featured from hundreds of entries sent to DuPont, Reinhart said.

The restoration and preservation of vintage tractors is one of the fastest growing "sports" in the country, and interest has never been higher.

Several tractor makes that have not appeared on the four previous DuPont calendars are featured in the upcoming edition. These include an Imperial (made in Canada), Baker, Eagle, Aultman Taylor, and Huber.

Also new for the 1994 DuPont calendar will be an emphasis on farm safety and accident prevention. A "Farm Safety Monthly Memo" will appear each month with timely accident-prevention ideas, along with the reminder, "Farm Safety Is No Accident."

Reinhart said, "Anything we can do to help stem the tide of farm accidents will be a plus. A simple reminder could save a life."

The large, full-color calendar is available in October, along with a professionally-produced videotape of the owners talking about the unique characteristics of their tractors, which they start and drive. A colorful poster showing all 15 tractors is also available.

For information about the calendar, video and poster, call (800) 4 FARMS 1.

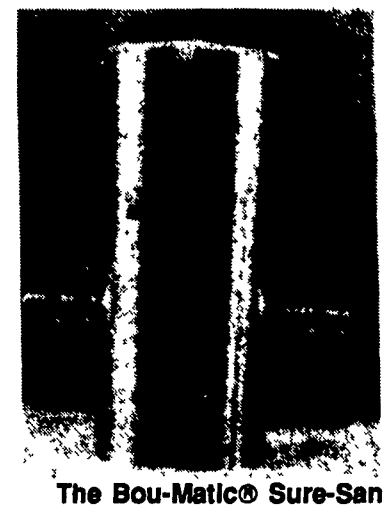
Bou-Matic Introduces Backflush Valve

MADISON, Wisc. — Many dairy operators believe that sanitizing each milking unit after each cow is milked is important in controling mastitis. That is why Bou-Matic introduces the Sure-San™ backflush valve.

The Sure-San backflush-valve manages the flow of sanitizing solutions to the milking unit. It can be used with existing Bou-Matic Sure-San backflush systems or it can be adapted to most other brands of backflush systems.

A number of features help make the Sure-San backflush valve unique. The air cylinder that shifts the valve is integrated within the valve body. This design seals off the cylinder from any parlor contaminates. Another design features a double washing action that cleans the slide action valve internally and externally to eliminate chemical buildup.

The Sure-San backflush valve has two safety features built into it. Should a power loss occur, a spring loaded mechanism prevents the slide valve from moving into the back flush position, or automatically shifts and holds the valve in milking position.



The Bou-Matic® Sure-San backflush valve manages the flow of sanitizing solutions to the milking unit and can be adapted to most brands of backflush systems.

The Sure-San valve is also compact. It can be mounted under the flairing of most angled curbs, keeping it out of your way.

For more information on the Bou-Matic Sure-San backflush valve, contact your nearest dealer or Joe Prazak, product manager, Bou-Matic, the Dairy Equipment Division of DEC International, P.O. Box 8050, Madison, WI 53708-8050, (608) 222-3484.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

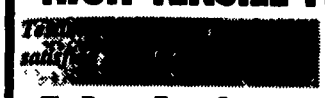
HIGH TENSILE FENCE...THE FARMER'S BEST INVESTMENT



The Beaver Fence Systems are tops! We installed 1 mile of their fence on our farm on Feb. 3, 1993, full size post, 3-1/2 feet deep, excellent braces. We used 5 strand (2 elec.) high tensil, all in place in just 8-1/2 hours! The fence is as straight as an arrow-excellent equipment-very efficient work!

"I am a hard man to convince, but after I saw how Beaver built the fence, I'm ready to put my digging iron away," says David W. Brubaker of Honey Grove Acres, RD1, Box 629 Honey Grove, PA 17035

Farmers Reminded To Report Weather-Damaged Crops

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Before destroying weather-damaged crops, farmers should notify the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) to obtain 1993 acreage credit and documentation for future crop acreage bases.

"When we inspect the area for this purpose, evidence of the failed acreage must be present," said county ASCS official Richard Troutman.

Recently, some areas of the county experienced high winds and hail, which caused some crop damage. Barley was flattened and corn was shredded in some areas.

Farmers are currently filing acreage reports with ASCS to qualify for benefits on their 1993 program crops. The program participants must report crops, cropland acres to be devoted to the acreage conservation reserve, and other land uses.

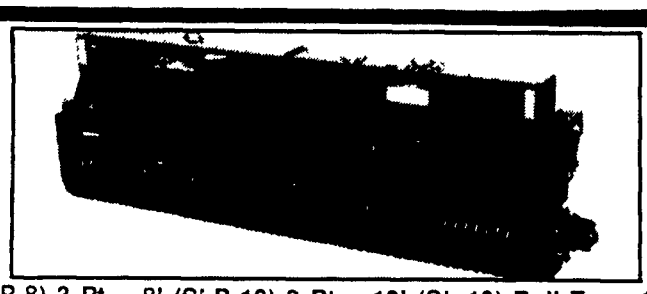
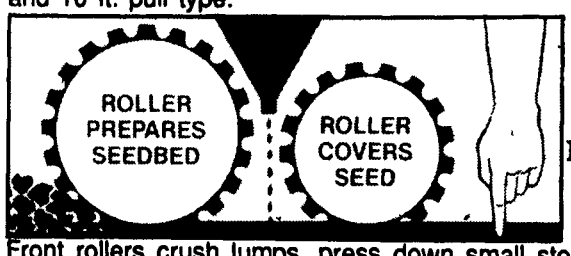
The Precision Grass Seeder For Professional Landscapers Turf and Sod Producers



(SLP-8) 3 Pt. - 8' (SLP-10) 3 Pt. - 10' (SL-10) Pull Type 10' The Brillion Turfmaker is designed to seed large areas at precise rates. Accurate placement of seed at the proper depth assures maximum germination and thicker, more uniform stands with seed saving sup to 50%. Also available in 8 ft. and 10 ft. pull type.



SEED THE BRILLION WAY

Front rollers crush lumps, press down small stones, and form a firm seedbed. Precision seeding devices meter out the seed onto the well prepared seedbed. Rear rollers split the shallow ridges formed by the front rollers and gently firm the soil around the tiny seeds.

Governor's School For Ag Sciences In Session

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — College graduates with expertise in agricultural sciences will enjoy a strong employment market through the 1990s, according to a recent USDA report. Positions in marketing, merchandising, and technical areas will be difficult to fill, and scientists, engineers and related specialists will be in great demand.

"There are tremendous opportunities in the agricultural sciences for young people today," said Dr. Marianne Houser, instructor in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Penn State is trying to catch the best and brightest at an early age to teach them about these career opportunities. This summer, 64 of the state's leading high school students are spending their vacations studying agricultural economics and business, plant and animal science, land use, remote sensing, and computers at the Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences, July 4 to August 7.

The students, who come from both urban and rural areas, were selected from hundreds of applicants for their strong academic credentials and interest in science and technology. Each student has been awarded a full scholarship, which covers tuition, classroom materials, student activities, and room and board in the university's residence halls.

"Governor's School is a once in a lifetime experience," said Houser. "Students are exposed to a wide variety of fields — agricultural economics and business, animal science, engineering systems, plant science, international agriculture, and managing natural resources and the environment. They learn about methods and techniques of agricultural research, leadership development and career planning."

Participants also may elect to study entomology, agricultural engineering, food science, remote sensing, and geographic information systems. They work individually with faculty members on independent study projects.

Penn State's extensive teaching and research facilities provide the students with access to classrooms, computers, libraries, and laboratories. Governor's School assistants supervise the students and take part in classes, special events, and field trips.

Governor's School scholars also have the opportunity to meet and interview professionals about career opportunities in industries such as food processing and agricultural communications.

Field trips and activities are planned, including visits to Longwood Botanical Gardens, Hershey Foods, the New Bolton Center at the University of Pennsylvania, the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, and Shaver's Creek Environmental Center.

The Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Education, the state's intermediate units, and Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. Pennsylvania's Governor's Schools also are offered in the arts, sciences, education, health care, and international studies. Questions about the Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences can be directed to Marianne Houser or Nancy Walker at (814) 865-7521.

Ephrata Young Farmers Welcome New Adviser

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Michael Brubaker, who is the president of Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, Inc., (BACS), has been selected by the Ephrata Area Young Farmers Association to serve as the advisor for the coming year.

Brubaker started BACS in 1978 in order to help farmers make sound economic and environmental decisions that would improve yields and promote environmental stewardship. He is a certified agronomist, custom applicator, and soil scientist. Brubaker uses his expertise as an agronomist to benefit the various committees and boards he has been invited to join — most recently, the Advisory Committee of the College of Agriculture of the Pennsylvania State University. He is a strong advocate, both on a local and state level, of agriculture and the vital role it plays in our nation.

Brubaker has been honored by several organizations in the past. He has been nominated as the Small Business Person of the Year, received recognition as Communicator of the Year, and was recognized as an Outstanding Young Community Leader.

Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, Inc. is the sixth largest agricultural/environmental consulting firm in the United States. Their staff of agronomists are employed throughout the Mid-Atlantic region. BACS staff, collectively, has many decades of field experience.

BACS employs 12 full-time employees.

Directory Reveals Local Farm Harvests

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Everyone knows that summer is the season for fresh strawberries, sweet corn, tomatoes, and all thoses other fruits and vegetables. But who knows when to buy locally grown produce? Where to pick you own berries or flowers? How to purchase meats directly from the producers? Or where to get straw for the home garden?

With the help of a new, free directory of local farms, anyone can have this information at their fingertips.

"Fresh from Montgomery County Farms" is a listing for the 1993 growing season of 40 area producers. Included are the farm names, address and phone, general location, farm-grown products, services, and hours. An availability schedule and county map are also provided.

The directory is a product of Montgomery County Cooperative Extension based at the County 4-H Center on Route 113 in Creamery.

"Our directory makes it as easy for consumers to be at the right place at the right time," said Nancy Stevens, director of the Montgomery County Extension office. "For some people, it'll be the first time they've bought directly from the field. They'll be the most surprised when they discover the variety, the fresh flavors, and the farm experience."

Stevens points out that by buying from farmers, consumers can learn more about agriculture and the families that make a living off of the land, first settled 300 years ago. Helping maintain open space in the county is another benefit. And on a final, very practical note, Stevens said it's easier to get kids to eat more fruits and vegetables when they are fresh and taste better.

Copies of "Fresh from Montgomery County Farms" are available at any of the county information centers (Abington, Ambler, Ardmore, Hatboro, Lansdale, and Pottstown), at the county courthouse lobby in Norristown, and the public libraries. A copy is also available by sending a self-addressed, stamped legal size envelope to Montgomery County Cooperative Extension, P.O. Box 20, Route 113, Creamery, PA 19430. It is available in large quantities to organizations, churches, or employers. For more information, call (215) 489-4315.

Catch Bugs From Bugs

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dr. Charles Pitts has been all over the world. During his travels, he's seen a number of exotic diseases transmitted by insects.

The United States is not immune from bug-borne sicknesses, but it's not an area of medicine that many American health care professionals receive specialized training in.

To enhance awareness of such diseases, Pitts, professor of entomology in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, teaches medical entomology. The undergraduate course was offered for the first time this spring. Pitts says if there is sufficient interest, he will continue to offer it.

"Many students who took the course are pre-med majors," said Pitts, who taught a similar course for 15 years at Kansas State University. "But the course also is useful for anyone who plans to travel or work internationally. The world is getting smaller and smaller, and his knowledge will be helpful in assessing and managing the risks of going overseas."

Students learn about some of the well-known diseases prevalent around the world, such as mosquito-borne malaria and yellow fever. About 500,000 cases of yellow fever are reported each year in Africa and South America. Worldwide cases of malaria are estimated at more than 157 million annually.

Also covered in the course is sleeping sickness, a tropical disease transmitted by the tse tse fly. "Sleeping sickness has really restricted the development of Africa," said Pitts. "It's had as great an impact on one continent as any disease."

Diseases transmitted by insects in the U.S. may not be as exotic, but they can be just as serious. "We usually think of plague as a disease from the Middle Ages," said Pitts. "But there are several cases of plague each year in the U.S., mostly in the mountains of Colorado and Utah."

Plague is spread by fleas that feed on rodents. "It's easy to treat, but hard to recognize," Pitts said. "If it's not caught early, it can be fatal."

Other insect-borne diseases that occur in the U.S. are Lyme disease and Rocky Mountain spotted fever, transmitted by ticks, and encephalitis, which is carried by mosquitos. Reported Lyme disease cases in the U.S. have risen from 29 in 1986 to 988 in 1992.

The course covers how diseases related to the insects that carry them and how the diseases survive in nature. Treatment is not discussed, but prevention measures such as vaccination are covered.

"These diseases may be rare, but you can't just forget about them," Pitts said. "Those receiving medical training or planning to be in high-risk areas need this kind of information."

TIOGA COUNTY FAIR

Agriculture is still the number one industry in Tioga County and there is no better place to see it all than at the 1993 Tioga County Fair, held at the Fairgrounds in Whitneyville from Tuesday, August 10 through Sunday, August 15.

On opening day, visitors can view the fresh flowers, vegetables, wool exhibit, hay and grain, and all types of youth exhibits — all grown in Tioga County. There will also be antique tractors displayed on the grounds all week long.

On Tuesday evening, visitors will have the opportunity to join in the fun of the annual baked goods auction. The 1993 Fair Queen will be crowned by Teresa McIlwain, 1992 Fair Queen. Visitors can take in the horse pull or experience the amazing piano talent of John Bressler.

Wednesday starts a round of dairy and livestock shows that will last throughout the rest of the week with the 4-H and vocational dairy show. Wednesday is Family Day. There will be clowns, an ice cream eating contest, a kiddie tractor pull, and special prices on amusement rides.

On Thursday there is an early morning showing of the county's best beef animals. Lots of fun can be had in the afternoon viewing the junior sheep blocking contest in which sheep will be brought straight from the field to be fitted. This contest will be followed by the open and junior sheep show. In the Youth Center Building, there will be an all-day sheep and wool demonstration in which a sheep will be shorn, and wool will be spun and woven into a shawl which will be auctioned off at the Junior Livestock Sale. At 6:30 p.m. there will be a dog obedience demonstration in the horse ring.

On Friday, the Swine Show precedes the Open Colored Breed Show. And for those who like crafts, there is a craft show in the Youth Center Building where an entire quilt will be made during the day.

Saturday continues with a horse show and the open Holstein Dairy Show. Saturday afternoon at the Junior Livestock Sale the prize-winning meat animals will be auctioned off as well as baskets of milk products and a gallon of milk from the grand champion of each breed of the youth shows.

The week of animal shows is rounded out on Sunday, August 15 at 10 a.m. with the Draft Horse Show. Also on Sunday is a horseshoe pitching tournament and a gospel music performance in the afternoon.

Pick up a schedule, or watch and listen to the news media. There's sure to be something you'll enjoy at the Tioga County Fair.

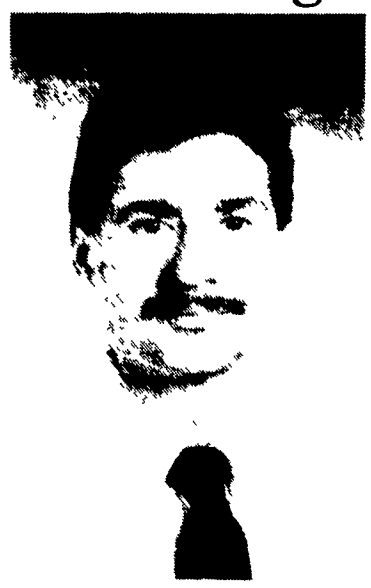
Kensinger Receives Young Scientist Award

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The northeastern section of the American Society of Animal Science/American Dairy Science Association has presented Ronald S. Kensinger its Young Scientist Award at its recent meeting at the University of Maryland, College Park.

The Young Scientist Award recognizes Kensinger, associate professor of animal nutrition physiology in Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, for his contributions to the animal sciences in teaching, extension, and research.

Kensinger is one of a new breed of scientists who did now grow up on a farm, but who seek to understand the issues facing animal agriculture and answer basic questions for animal producers through research. Kensinger's research on somatotropin, growth factors, mammary cells, and control of lactogenesis in the pig has helped to overcome some of the obstacles which limit the efficiency of animal productivity. He has received support from swine producer organizations, attesting to the value of this research.

He teaches at both the undergraduate and graduate levels and participates in a number of activities, including advising undergraduate students, serving as associate director of the Intercollege Graduate Program in Nutrition, and participating in the Pennsylvania Governor's School for Agricultural Sciences.



Ronald S. Kensinger

Kensinger recently spent a year-long sabbatical leave at the University of California, Santa Cruz, where his work focused on contemporary techniques in molecular biology, making important scientific contacts, and further refining his skills in grant proposal preparation.

Through ongoing research at Penn State, Kensinger seeks to increase weaning the weight of piglets. A statistic of economic importance to pork producers — the number of pigs weaned per sow per year — often determines if a farm is profitable. The goal of this research is to develop new methods to prevent poor milk production right after farrowing in sows and more effective methods of treating animals with this condition. The project is supported by grants from the Pennsylvania and the National Pork Producers Councils.

Kensinger has served on several committees at Penn State and has been a member of American Society of Animal Science's Biennial Growth Symposium Committee, as well as the editorial boards of the Journal of Animal Science and Journal of Dairy Science.

Ag Advocates Promote Agriculture

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — While other industries have cut back in response to the recession, agriculture has continued to grow. In the coming academic year, a group of Penn State students will work to inform the public about opportunities in the nation's number-one industry.

Thirteen undergraduates in the College of Agricultural Sciences will serve as ag advocates. They will support the college's efforts to enhance the image of agriculture and recruit highly qualified students. They also will help alumni and friends stay in touch with college programs and developments.

"More agricultural scientists are needed to improve food and fiber production in the United States," said Dr. Marianne Houser, instructor in agricultural education and adviser for the program.

"Students in the College of Agricultural Sciences receive training in diverse areas such as horticulture, veterinary science, and environmental resource management," she said. "Graduates have excellent career opportunities."

The 1993-1994 Ag Advocates come from both urban and rural areas of Pennsylvania and represent several academic departments in the College of Agriculture Sciences. They are:

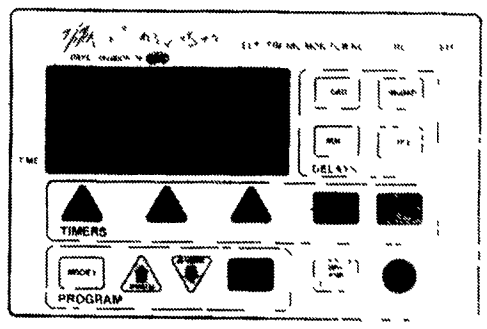
- Catherine Dawson of Allentown, a senior majoring in environmental resource management
- Aimee Eopechino of Hanover, a senior majoring in food science
- Michael Gainer of Erie, a junior majoring in agricultural science
- Christa Garcia of Allentown, a junior majoring in animal bioscience and minoring in wildlife and fisheries science
- Barbara Hart of Aliquippa, a junior majoring in animal bioscience
- Jayne Nadine Hess of Gettysburg, a sophomore majoring in agricultural science and minoring in English
- Jennifer Kay Hummel of Duncannon, a sophomore majoring in agricultural science
- David Lentz of Lebanon, a senior majoring in dairy and animal science
- Jeffrey Ozarski of Downingtown, a senior majoring in environmental resource management
- Shannon Peterman of Muncy, a junior majoring in agricultural economics and rural sociology and minoring in dairy science

Tracy Szathmary of Morrisville, a sophomore majoring in agricultural engineering and minoring in environmental engineering

- Holly Shoener of Pine Grove, a senior majoring in agricultural and biological engineering
- Michelle Troutman of Richland, a freshman majoring in food science.

Ag advocates are selected on the basis of high academic achievement, interviews, and faculty recommendations. Dr. Lamartine F. Hood, dean of the college, initiated the program in the fall of 1988.

Control System Eliminates Timers



ASSUMPTION, Ill. — Airstream Dryer division of Grain Systems, Inc. (GSI) has introduced an innovative, more efficient line of dryers.

A standard feature on all 1993 Airstream dryers is the New Computerized Electronic Monitoring Control System. This control system totally eliminates the troublesome timers and mechanical control relays which are typically used to control batch, staged batch, and continuous flow grain dryers.

The controller is capable of continually monitoring and controlling more than 100 dryer functions while providing the dryer operator with instant dryer information on a large liquid crystal display. Memory features incorporated into the unit maintains a history of past dryer operation, dryer throughput, and dryer service.

The control system is designed to greatly simplify dryer operation while providing a safer, more troublefree dryer.

For more information, contact Airstream Dryer division of GSI, Steve Southworth, Sales Manager, 1004 E. Illinois St., Assumption, IL 62510, (217) 226-4421.

Grain Suffocation Risk Higher This Year

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Grain farmers and their families may face deadly hazards this spring and summer when working with grain bins, said a farm safety expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"According to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, at least nine farmers recently have suffocated to death after being buried alive in stored grain," said Dr. Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering.

The risk of suffocation may be higher this year than usual. "Last year's wet fall and large crop forced farmers to store grain wet and for a longer time," Murphy said. "Moisture can cause the grain to cake or crust at the surface, a process frequently called 'bridging.'"

Bridged grain is extremely hazardous because it prevents grain flow and hides underlying pockets in the grain. Farmers walking on or trying to break up the bridged material have fallen through the surface and become engulfed in grain.

Farm workers also can be buried while stored grain is being emptied from the bottom of the bin. Typical unloading rates will bury a person in less than a minute.

"Like quicksand, flowing grain can pull you completely into the bin," Murphy said. "The force created by the unloading grain is so great that once you're waist deep in the grain, you're unlikely to be able to escape, even with a safety rope."

Spoiled grain increases suffocation risks. "Spoiled grain emits carbon dioxide, which displaces oxygen in the bin. Even if a worker isn't completely buried, he or she can suffocate from the lack of oxygen above the grain surface."

Grain caked along the bin walls presents another hazard. "When workers try to break the caked material loose from below the level of grain, large sections of grain may break off, burying them below," Murphy said. "Never enter a storage area from the bottom when material is caked to the sides of the bin or bridged overhead."

Break up crusts from outside the bin. "Break crusts through the roof door with a weighted line or a wooden or plastic pole that can't conduct electricity," Murphy said. "Don't use conductive poles, since they may contact power lines near the bin."

If you must enter a bin, stay above the grain at all times. "Never stand on stored material," Murphy said. "Assume that all stored materials are bridged and unstable."

Before entering the bin, stop the grain flow. "Never load or unload the bin while a worker is inside," Murphy said. "All equipment used to fill or empty a bin should be turned off and locked out to prevent other workers from starting it accidentally."

Also turn on ventilating equipment. "The bin should be thoroughly ventilated with unheated air before and while a worker is in the bin."

Wear a safety belt or harness equipped with a properly fastened life line that will keep you above the stored material if you fall. "A similarly equipped standby person should remain outside the bin," Murphy said, "Safety equipment won't protect you in the event you fall below the level of stored material."

Some storage bins can be modified with equipment that mechanically breaks up bridges and clumps. "Commercially available equipment can assist in breaking crusted grain surfaces from outside the bin, but the safety of these devices remains untested," Murphy said.

Pa.'s Winter Wheat Crop at 8.25 Million Bushels

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — With winter wheat harvest beginning soon, Pennsylvania farmers expect to produce a 8.25 million-bushel crop for 1993. The winter wheat crop is down from 1992's 10.17 million-bushel crop, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's June crop production report.

USDA officials indicated the national average farm price for wheat may range from $42.55 to $2.75 per bushel.

Winter wheat producers in the State expect to harvest 165,000 acres this year, compared to 185,000 acres last year. Crop yields are expected to average 50 bushels per acres in 1993, compared to 55 in 1992.

Richard Trouman, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), said crop conditions in the county have been good so far. About 1,025 acres of wheat are enrolled in the county's 1993 farm program.

Nationally, winter wheat producers are expected to harvest 44.3 million acres to produce an estimated 1.82 billion-bushel winter wheat crop in 1993 — 14 percent more than in 1992. Crop yields for winter wheat could average 41.2 bushels per acres in 1993.

If your cows had the last word on which take-off they'd rather have, it would be...

UNIVERSAL RETRAC™

Let's face it.

If you had to have something hooked up to a very sensitive and complicated part of your body two or three times a day for five minutes at a time, 305 days a year, you'd make darn sure that the thing worked well and kept working well.

When Universal's engineers designed the new ReTrac™ automatic take-off, they had two things in mind: your cows and you. They knew if ReTrac worked safely and efficiently on your cows day after day, that was by far the most important goal to achieve. It's not only what you'd want, but what you'd demand. Universal's engineers know that to succeed you have to have a great product, at the right price. We think they did their job.

The cows may have the last word, but it's still your money. We believe the new ReTrac from Universal will make you both happy. Contact your dealer for a free demonstration.

27,093.1 Acres Enrolled In Farm Programs

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Berks County farmers enrolled 27,093.1 acres of feed grains and wheat in the 1993 acreage reduction programs, according to Richard Troutman.

The 1993 farm program participants contracted to reduce their acreage bases by 10 percent for corn, 5 percent for grain sorghum, and zero percent for wheat, oats, and barley. As a result of these acreage reduction requirements, 1,255.7 acres will be designated as acreage conservation reserve (ACR). "Also, 1,024.9 acres are intended to be idled under the 0/92 program provisions," Troutman said.

Under the 1993 programs, farmers have the option of planting permitted crops, other than the program crop, on up to 25 percent of the crop acreage base. According to Troutman, Berks County producers intend to plant 364.7 "flex" acres to soybeans and 364.1 acres to other crops.

Participating farmers will be eligible for price support loans and deficiency payments.

Nationally, farmers enrolled 175.6 million acres of program crops and intend to idle 19.9 million acres under the 1993 acreage reduction programs.

Air Pump Addresses Dairy Farmer Needs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Dairy farmers concerned about oil now have a new choice in vacuum pumps.

The Universal air pump delivers years of low-maintenance performance. Unlike most vacuum pumps, which are oil-lubricated, the air pump has no oil circulating through it.

The Universal air pump is designed for maximum efficiency. Two figure-eight impellers rotate in opposite directions to deliver trapped air to the blower outlet. Timing gears maintain the minute clearances required for high-volume operation. The timing gears and gear-end bearings are splash-oil lubricated from an oil-tight housing enclosing the timing gears, and special seals prevent oil and grease from entering the impeller chamber.

The pump's heavy design dramatically reduces operating noise, features a compact design, and is packaged with all accessories. It is available in 10-, 15-, 20-, and 25-horsepower models.

REMEMBER THE (3) LAWS OF HOOBER-RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES:

LAW #1- (14) Years Old is not equal to (≠) WORN OUT...

Because of the simple design of the CASE IH Axial Flow Combines, they can be reconditioned by HOOBER'S expert combine mechanics to like-new condition, so they provide 2nd and 3rd owners years of satisfactory and profitable operation.

LAW #2- (3,500) HOURS PLUS (+) HOOBER RECONDITIONING Equals (=) YEARS OF DEPENDABLE SERVICE...

(3,500) Hours on a conventional combine usually means they'll be too much trouble to be dependable. Axial-Flow combines with (3,500) hours, reconditioned by HOOBER'S, have proven to run for years when purchased by farmers in PA, MD, DE and NJ.

LAW #3- A CASE IH AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE SERVICED BY EXPERT HOOBER COMBINE MECHANICS EQUALS (=) LITTLE OR NO DOWNTIME DURING HARVEST...

When Hoober's expert combine mechanics service and repair AXIAL-FLOW combines in the off-season, they run dependably through the season.

Get Comforting Heat and Efficiency.

The Mahoning Outdoor Multi-Fuel Furnaces provide thermostat controlled heat by economically burning wood, coal or fuel oil. The furnace is placed 25-100 feet outside the structure to be heated; connections between the furnace and building are buried underground. Wood or coal is the primary burning fuel lasting 8-12 hours in the furnace. For convenient, automatic firing the separate oil burner combustion chamber can provide heat until wood or coal burning is desired. Both Wood/Coal & the Fuel Oil burners are enclosed to heat the same water tank. The purpose of the firebox is to heat the water-filled tank surrounding the outside unit, this heated water is then circulated through underground pipes into your home. A heating coil is installed inside your existing heat system. The thermostat controls the blower which picks the heat off the coils and delivers warm air through existing ducts and registers. There are safeties which eliminate the danger of over-pressurizing the system and automatic shutdown in case of a power failure. The Mahoning Outdoor Furnace can also be connected to an existing hydronic heating system, that operates at 180° F or less, using fin tube baseboard, cast iron radiators or hanging hydronic heaters. Only the thermostat and heating coils are installed inside your home, eliminating open fire dangers, smoke, dust and messy kindling wood boxes. Adjust the thermostat for the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace to your comfort setting and it automatically controls the water pump and blower to circulate heat to your home. You may set the thermostat for your existing heat system to back-up the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace when not in operation or in case the firebox is left to burn out. An Aquastat senses the temperature of the water in the outside unit and automatically adjusts the combustion rate to maintain the correct temperature (normally 180 degrees).

Hot Water too...!

A Mahoning Outdoor Furnace is a heat exchanger. By running a cold water line from your home to the outside unit, fresh household cold water can be heated and returned to the hot water plumbing in the house. A tempering valve adjusts the hot water at the faucets to a range of 120° to 160°. This boiler system will adapt to any existing plumbing. Heat your pool & hot tub with energy generated by a Mahoning Outdoor Furnace!

The unique cutting cylinder is the heart of the Jaguar 695.

CLAAS offers the world's only folding 6-row corn head. It also fits John Deere and New Holland forage harvesters.

CLAAS of America proudly introduces the world's largest selling forage harvester: the CLAAS® Jaguar 695. Tested and proven worldwide, the Jaguar possesses power and speed, while offering reliability, performance and advanced technology unmatched by the competition.

The heart of the Jaguar is CLAAS's 24-knife, precision engineered cutting cylinder that gives a clean, superior chop. The angled knives draw the crop toward the center, producing a smooth, steady flow through to the discharge chute. The knives' "scissors action chop" ensures a cleaner cut. And all of this is done with minimal power requirements.

An automatic electrohydraulic knife sharpener is standard. The shearbar is easily accessible and quickly adjusted.

CLAAS's field-proven, 4-trac mechanical rear wheel drive carries the Jaguar efficiently through any field condition. This optional 4-trac four wheel drive unit can be engaged on-the-go.

The full visibility cab is air conditioned, heated and soundproofed for operator comfort. A multi-function control lever puts control of all harvesting functions at the operator's fingertips. The world renowned Mercedes 354 hp V8 diesel engine means reliability and economical operation.

An optional corn cracker maximizes feed quality by ensuring a fully digestible harvest. Independent studies show CLAAS's unbeatable corn cracker is nearly 100% effective.

The Jaguar's 6-row corn head is the world's only folding corn head. This unique header comes with "Auto steer" to guide the Jaguar automatically through the rows, assuring ease of operation.

Pickup attachments from 7′ to 14′ are available.

Every Jaguar is backed by CLAAS's commitment to quality in sales, service and parts replacement.

Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete
STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER
IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?
PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON
S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.
The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

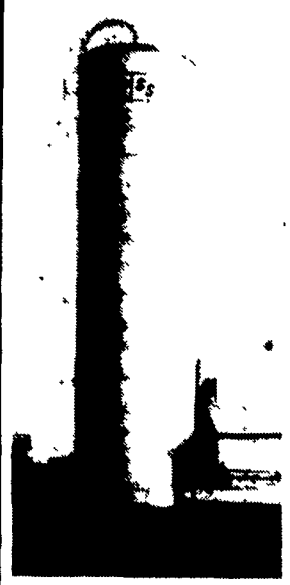
B.T.U.

"BUY THIS UNIT", or one like it to store your high-moisture shelled corn and save a lot of energy. With the cool spring and slow start for a lot of corn fields, this may be another harvest season coming up when the corn dries slowly...



16'x68'
about 10,000 bu. cap.
Shelled Corn
Poured Concrete
No Used Silos!
No Rebuilt Silos!
No Preowned Silos!!

In order to avoid hauling and drying costs, let us build a corn storage unit to preserve your valuable grain at 20%-30% moisture.

To keep your stored corn bright and yellow, you must protect it from oxygen and heat. Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel.

Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to pre-fab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement.

BEFORE SPENDING A LOT OF MONEY FOR ENERGY (B.T.U.'s) TO DRY YOUR CORN, YOU WILL DO WELL TO CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF OUR POURED CONCRETE SILOS...

To unload your corn, we can install the simple auger system, the Laidig 43 unloader, or the Flying Dutchman. Lets discuss the options, and what is best for your situation.

New Ultimate EXT.™ The Breakthrough Diet That Helps Her Add Several Pounds A Day.

When it comes to weight control and eating, dairy cows aren't like most people. A successful cow's diet should produce more pounds, not less, and her body weight needs to stay up after freshening.

Our new dairy feed works that way: introducing Ultimate EXT™ from Purina® Ultimate EXT helps cows produce more milk: an average of five more pounds a day in over 14,000 cows. By helping cows reduce body weight loss after calving, Ultimate EXT also improves body condition which can enhance breeding efficiency.

To put more weight on your bottom line, ask us about new Ultimate EXT. It turns good cows into great ones.
